We Plan a Seadrome
The French Black Squadron
The Puzzled Land Crabs
Why Force Solitary Drinking?

By Arthur Brisbane

MIAMI, FLA., Nov. 17—Uncle Sam, who seeks to be as rich just now as some of his nephews are poor, is considering the expenditure of a million and a half to build a seadrome, landing and fueling station for airplanes, 500 miles out in the Atlantic ocean. It will be a baby seadrome, one-quarter as big as was at first proposed. If it works, fliers finding it and landing successfully, as doubtless they will, a bigger seadrome will be built. Perhaps a series of them all across the ocean, allowing planes to hop from one to the other, like Eliza crossing on the cakes of ice.

Very likely, by the time the first big seadrome is finished, airplanes will consider a non-stop flight over the Atlantic a triviality. There will be a seadrome for sale cheap.

It is less than 23 years since Lord Northcliffe paid a reward of $50,000 to the first man that would fly across the English Channel. A Frenchman won it. In those days they might have suggested a mid-channel "seadrome." Germany keeps a refuelling ship in the southern Atlantic, to supply gas to German transatlantic planes. It works well.

The French "Black Squadron" of 28 airplanes, flying from France across North Africa, steering with precision, lands in the middle of the Sahara Desert, at the little oasis of Bidon. There in addition to water, they found a gasoline pump, installed in the desert for its fliers by the French government.

Long flights of airplanes "in formation," the Balbo flight, the present French "Black Squadron" flight, Germans going back and forth with ferry-boat regularity from Berlin to South America, ought to awaken the United States government.

If that does not happen, one of those fleets may awaken our government some day with considerable suddenness and unpleasant results.

You would be interested in the big land crabs that inhabit the Florida peninsula, and think, with fairly good reason, that it belongs to them.

In a garden you see hundreds of newly-made holes, a land crab living in each, often sitting at his door with a queer claw that looks like a bony hand projecting from the entrance, ready to seize what he likes.

These innumerable holes undermine plants, even palm trees, and the first duty of man is to pour in a little gasoline, stop the hole with earth, and let gasolene fumes do their painful duty.

William James, great psychologist, in his book of lectures for teachers and students, says the fox terrier, watching its master read a book, cannot possibly imagine what the master is doing, or believe that there is any use in it.

You could not make the land crab understand the purpose of the demon bringing gasolene. The crab would never believe that the gasolene demon was working to save trees. He would, rightly, complain of injustice, because the land crabs were in possession here a million years before men came.

But crabs were content to develop mentally to the point of digging a hole in the ground and stopped there. Man went ahead, learned to think, and make gasolene. And to him who thinks belongs whatever he wants, if he thinks long, hard and well enough.

Solemn lawmakers, arranging the distribution of "hard liquor" after prohibition, object to "drinking on the premises," that is to say, where the liquor is sold. Laws will be passed compelling the would-be drinker to buy an entire bottle and take it home. The women of New Zealand know something about that. They closed public drinking places, the man brought home his bottle or two bottles, put them under a pillow and drank until they were gone, or he was "out."

Then the women of New Zealand voted the home bottles out,

Judge Orders Berkwitz Disbarred in "Fixing"

Atty. Abram J. Berkwitz of Boston and Brookline, against whom charges of jury-fixing were made in the Supreme Court where he was given a hearing three weeks ago, was disbarred today by Judge Fred T. Field, who heard the case.

Judge Field ruled that Berkwitz corruptly influenced, or attempted to influence, civil court juries in three cases in Suffolk County.

According to the judge, the evidence showed that Berkwitz by gross misconduct violated his oath as an attorney-at-law and made himself liable for removal from the bar.

"I direct," said Judge Field, "that an order of disbarment of the respondent from the office of attorney in the courts of this commonwealth be entered."

The three cases on which the disbarment order is based are those of DeMeers v. Ward and Katz v. Sklar, both in 1929, and Cohen v. Doyle in 1931.

Judge Field said he failed to find wrongdoing on the part of Berkwitz in the cases of DePietro v. Hood & Sons, Flood v. Grinnell and Handlin v. Feldman.

Berkwitz' disbarment had been recommended to the supreme court by Dunbar F. Carpenter, special bar investigator. Several jurors testified to receiving money for bringing in verdicts for clients of the lawyer.

Several others, who had made admissions to Carpenter, refused to testify at the supreme court hearing.

IMPORTANT RULING

In his report, Judge Field granted several rulings asked for by Berkwitz, of which one of the most important was the following:

"In a matter as serious as disbarment, with its attendant degradation and probable effects on a man's livelihood, the accused is and should be entitled to every favorable intendment in his favor."

1—Mayor Curley plans to put 1000 men to work on Strandway improvements, park wading pools, paving of alleys, completion of assessment survey and other projects.

2—President Roosevelt promises the "first payday for 1,000,000 men" on municipal civil works jobs will be Nov. 25.

3—Special meeting of representatives of all Massachusetts cities and towns called for Monday at 2 p. m. at the State House by Administrator Rycroft, who assures them relief from civil works funds are "a gift of Uncle Sam."

4—Special meeting of Mayors Club of Massachusetts called for Parker House, tomorrow at 1 p. m., by its president, Mayor Casassa of Revere.

Details of Job Projects in Other Cities on Page 21

Re-employment of 1000 men on Boston projects, within a week, is proposed by Mayor Curley under new federal civil works allotments, the mayor said today.

He plans, he said, to make special provision for job-hunting white collar workers. The projects he has in mind include South Boston Strandway improvements, building of "Viennese" wading pools in parks, paving alleys, enlargement of the staff and the work of the city planning department, and stripping of the staff now engaged in organizing the new "block system" of assessment

MILLION FOR STRANDWAY

The Strandway project, Mayor Curley said, involves beach grading, tree planting, building of cement steps and seats, and construction of grass plots between beach and boulevard. Expenditure needed would be $1,000,000.

Park improvements of $1,500,000, he said, would include construction of 15 wading pools, "like those in Vienna," where women and children would be able to enjoy sun and outdoor air.

Immediate work may be started, Mayor Curley said, on paving of alleys in the South End and elsewhere.

White collar workers, the mayor said, will be taken care of by enlarging the city planning department. They will also be employed in the changing of the city tax assessment system from the old "atlas" form to the new "block method."

Other town and city authorities of Greater Boston and the Commonwealth were buckling down today to exercise the "inventive genius" they've been asked to show in devising projects for expenditure of their shares of the $400,000,000 civil works fund that Uncle Sam is to pass along to local communities to aid them in re-employment.

Indications were that there'd be

KIDNAPED BOY SHOT DEAD IN WATER

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 17 Brooke L. Hart, kidnap victim, probably met his death from a bullet fired by Thomas H. Thurmond, one of his abductors, while struggling for life in the cold waters of San Francisco bay.

"In his confession, Sheriff Emig said today, "John M. Holmes declared that after Hart was thrown into the water the youth struggled, although his arms were bound high and his legs were weighted with bricks. The youth was shot to death with his hands.

"Thurmond then said to Holmes, who had the only revolver, according to the confession:

"'Gimme that gun!'

"Thurmond then emptied the revolver. As the boy, Holmes' statement reads, Holmes stated he presumed the bullets struck young Hart because the boy stopped struggling and sank beneath the surface."

CLUES IN WATER

As Sheriff Emig made his disclosure, word came from the San Mateo bridge, scene of the murder, that searchers had found a piece of flesh and bits of cloth, garnered by grappling hooks.

The discoveries were made by Marshall Hall, a young attorney in the office of Louis O'Neal, prominent San Jose lawyer and friend of the Hart family.

The specimen of flesh was rushed to the Agnew State Hospital, nearby, for examination by pathologists for determination whether it was a portion of Hart's body.

Earlier today police and deputy sheriffs had saved the two confessed kidnay killers from a mob that threatened to lynch them, and hurried the culprits to San Francisco.

DEATH FOR KILLERS

A San Francisco police boat and a yacht owned by a friend of the Hart family were engaged in the dragging operations.

The confessed kidnapers will face a death trial if Dist. Atty. Fred Thomas invokes California's new kidnap statute. He declared his intention of asking for the death penalty for Thurmond and Holmes.

NICHOLS' GAIN NOW 375 VOTES

BULLETIN

Former Mayor Nichols picked up a net gain of 136 votes today in the mayoral recount in Precincts 8 of Ward 3, in which ward the Nichols forces have predicted the first "break" would come. These brought his total of gains up to 375 votes, with 137 precincts counted out of the 362.

Far behind his expectations, former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols had picked up 223 votes today as the 152d precinct was tallied in the Boston recount, but he was conceded no chance of being able to overturn the election of Frederick W. Mansfield as mayor.

The 252 figure topped by 49 votes his largest net gain previously in the recount, the former mayor reaching 183 when the 81st precinct was completed yesterday.

When the recount session closed last night for the second day, 117 precincts out of the total of 362 had been covered and Nichols had showed a gain then of only 122 votes.

Liberty and the Press

THERE is a saying, "Nothing is so dangerous as an ignorant enthusiasm."

While we do not impute this type of enthusiasm to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, of the National Recovery Administration, we feel strongly that his failure freely, frankly and promptly to eliminate from the Publishers' Code the licensing feature as applied to the press is clearly the result of an imperfect or defective reading of what history has to say on this great subject.

No man, without inviting suspicion as to the breadth of his cultural backgrounds, could stumble as he has in his approach to it. He cannot be deeply versed in the history of popular liberty to so misunderstand the vital importance of keeping the press, as an organ of popular information, protest and discussion, clear of the faintest shadow of governmental or political restraint.

THE QUESTION is not how a licensing clause in the Publishers' Code shall be enforced—whether rigorously or not at all. It is not a matter of leniency in the interpretation of such a provision, nor a question as to whether this or that Administrator who happens to be in office intends to enforce it, or perhaps to disregard it, as Gen. Johnson announces his intention to be.

THE EXISTENCE OF SUCH A POWER IS IRRECONCILABLE WITH THE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM!

It is a falsification of our history—a nullification of the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution.

While in one view a newspaper may be looked upon as not differing essentially from other industries, its compliance with the commercial and industrial provisions of the Publishers' Code must be, and readily could be, enforced otherwise than by dangling over its head the possible forfeiture of its government license.

The existence of a license is a temptation to revoke it for doubtful cause, and that this temptation has proved too strong to resist has been repeatedly shown in the past.

WE NEED only cite the well-remembered case of The New York Times during its exposures of the corrupt conditions which prevailed in New York under the Tweed Ring.

16-Page Section Tells Story of Houghton Sale

"Greater Houghton Day," conceived by many to be one of the greatest single day's sale in New England, is publicized today with a 16-page section in the Boston American. No other Boston newspaper carries merchandise news of this event, staged by Houghton Dutton Co., one of Boston's pioneer department stores.

This section duplicates the previous record-sized campaign, also published exclusively in the American, and for the second time is the largest amount of advertising ever published in one day's issue of any Boston newspaper by any Boston retail store.

These 35,840 lines of advertising provide a three-fold demonstration; Houghton & Dutton Co.'s co-operation with the appeal of the government to buy and aid industry; confidence in the purchasing power of Boston and New England shoppers; and confidence in the Boston American as the best medium to carry this huge sales message to these shoppers.

That this faith is justified has been repeatedly proven by response of American readers to Houghton's advertising. The previous "Greater Houghton Day" sales, attracted a throng of customers, estimated at over 350,000. This sale will also contribute employment to a large number of Boston people for 2200 extra employes have been engaged by Houghton's, many of whom have been at work for some time in preparation for this event.

In commenting on "Greater Houghton Day," President Anthony W. Ackerman said:

"We believe that it's good business for Houghton's, a practical help to manufacturing industries and a direct benefit to consumers to go forward with a sale of this kind.

"Boston and New England have come through the trying times of the past three years splendidly. We have every confidence that the march onward to better times will continue with the steady, encouraging tempo which has prevailed since the early part of the year."

The crowd, which will be attracted to Houghton's tomorrow, is expected to exceed the record throng of the previous sale, and an augmented force of traffic police and officers in the store will be on hand [illegible] the store closes at 3 p. m.

3 ANARCHISTS DRAW LOTS ON BOMBING ELY HOME

EXCLUSIVE!

BULLETIN

Gen. Daniel Needham admitted late today that he had been told of the bomb plot against the governor and also told his own home might be blown up. From another source it was authoritatively established that General Needham had been warned of a plot against his children because of the Casa Madrid gambling raid on Cape Cod and that his home was guarded night and day for the two weeks preceding Sept. 25.

By JAMES J. SMITH

Gov. Ely is guarded because State police learned that three anarchists drew lots to decide which one would bomb his Westfield home, his son, Richard Ely, told the Boston Evening American today.

The governor's son disclosed the plot after this paper had revealed in an exclusive story that the governor's infant granddaughter and the children of former Gov. Frank G. Allen and Gen. Daniel Needham, public safety commissioner, were under guard following receipt of information indicating they might be kidnaped.

NEEDHAM WARNS

Although Gen. Needham, state police head, denied he had received any threats or that the governor had been threatened, Richard Ely said that it was through Needham the warning of the bomb plot was received.

The American's information indicates that General Needham himself was personally threatened, and that there is an organized campaign under way in Massachusetts to spread terror in high places.

Richard Ely told the American: "All I know about this situa-

MORGAN'S FIRST VISIT AT WHITE HOUSE PUZZLES NATION

RESPONDS TO INVITATION HE, HIMSELF, REQUESTED

Washington Has Own Ideas as to Mission on Gold and Bonds Despite Avowal of "Purely Social Call"

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

Washington, Nov. 17 (INS)—The capital's most engrossing mystery today concerned the visit of J. P. Morgan to the White House.

He came, he saw the President—at his own request—and he departed as mysteriously as he came, with no more information concerning the administration's gold-dollar policy than has been vouchsafed to the newspaper reporters who cover the White House. Probably not as much for the reporters ply Mr. Roosevelt particularly with eager questions. Mr. Morgan did not. He did not have the opportunity.

J. P. Morgan

So far as the White House was concerned, it was purely a social call. Mrs. Roosevelt was present throughout the brief visit and, of course, business is not discussed before the ladies.

MORGAN'S FIRST VISIT

This was J. P., the younger's, first visit to the executive mansion. He came, as stated, at his own request, and if his mission was other than some light, informal discussion over a cup of Mrs. Roosevelt's excellent tea, he went away without its having been disclosed.

The White House professed to be unable to throw any light on the purpose of Mr. Morgan's visit. It was arranged by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of Mr. Morgan's U. S. Steel Corporation, who said merely that the financier wished to see the President. The White House replied that Mr. Roosevelt would be glad to have Mr. Morgan come—to tea. Thus it was arranged.

The capital has its own ideas and speculates as to the reasons for Mr. Morgan's visit.

WALL ST. WANTS TO KNOW

Financial circles and the great banking interests radiating from Broad and Wall streets have been insistently trying for weeks to ascertain the direction and the goal of the administration's monetary policy.

They want to know how far Washington proposes to let the dollar drift in its downward course. They want to know how the government proposes to proceed with.

They are not alone in this, for gram that soon will have to be undertaken through bonds. They want to know more about this gold-purchase experiment, and whether the administration proposes to issue greenbacks. In short, they want to know what it is all about.

The House of Morgan has extensive foreign financiers, notably in Great Britain and France, also would like to know. They have been unable to gain the information through their usual channels, diplomatic or otherwise.

WAS AGENT OF BRITAIN

The house of Morgan has extensive foreign connections. It maintains branches in London and Paris. During the war, Mr. Morgan was the fiscal agents of the British government in the United States, financing many millions of dollars in purchases and bonds flotations.

It was recalled today that on one occasion during the summer when there was much anxiety abroad and at home in financial circles over stabilizing the dollar, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, sought an invitation to chat with Mr. Roosevelt. He, too, found himself in a tea-party on arrival, with no opportunity for private conversation. Again the ladies were present.

The gossip and the speculation concerning the object of Mr. Morgan's visit probably will continue for many days. The head of the House of Morgan does not usually seek tea-table engagements. It suggests too much of the mountain coming to Mahomet.

In any event, it is a mystery and likely to continue so. It may eventually rank in history with that other unsolved mystery as to "Who hit Huey Long"?

no hitch, locally at least, in arrangements for federal-paid jobs to put 100,000 men to work in Massachusetts at an estimated expense of $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

First step in cooperative municipal action was taken when Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere, just back from representing as president the Massachusetts Mayors' club at Washington, called a special meeting of all mayors of the state at the Parker House tomorrow at 1 p. m.

Simultaneously from Washington came assurance from President Roosevelt that first civil works pay day, under the new $400,000,000 setup, will be Nov. 25, a week from tomorrow, and that 1,000,000 men will draw fair living wages on local construction and repair jobs at that time.

In answer to hundreds of inquiries as to terms under which towns and cities may obtain their share of the federal $400,000,000, Administrator Bartlett announced succinctly today:

"This is a gift."

Bartlett pointed out, however, that the intention of the federal government is not to let local welfare boards get off scot free.

As the burden of financing families of heretofore unemployed is lessened, communities, he said, will be expected to "put a shoulder to the wheel" and use their welfare money to pay a share of new civil works payrolls.

A. P. CHIEF SEES PRESS IN PERIL

Baltimore, Nov. 17 (AP)—Byron Price, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, told the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association here today that "American journalism will stand if it maintains its inward greatness, and will fall if it loses it."

Speaking at the Johns Hopkins University, Price said:

"Once more we are hearing a great deal about freedom of the press. You will do well to follow that debate diligently, for as long as you live you will see the issue raised again and again. Seemingly the battle for a free press never is won finally but must be fought over and over by each succeeding generation.

"The American people made the constitution, and wrote into it the guarantee of a free press. The American people can remove that guarantee when they choose. They are not likely to do so as long as the press maintains its prestige as an honored and responsible institution. Will they not do so if that prestige and responsibility are tossed away by the frivolous, the gossips, and the rumor-mongers who may gain a foothold in the citadel?"

Gen. Harry Trexler Dies After Crash

Easton, Pa., Nov. 17—Gen. Harry C. Trexler, 73, chairman of the board of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company and a widely known banker of Allentown, Pa., died in a hospital here today of injuries received in an auto accident.

On his way home from New York City last night, his car sideswiped a large oil truck and trailer parked at the side of the highway, near here. Sitting in the rear seat, he received the full force of the impact.

Hit and Run Driver Flees Death Scene

One man was killed and another seriously injured by a hit-and-run driver who is being sought by Roxbury police today. Abraham J. Epstein, 53, of 26 Elm Hill pk., and Jacob Short, 52, of 38 Gaston st., Roxbury, were struck down on Warren st., near Elm Hill ave. Epstein died.

REVIEW OF RUM BILL DRAFT TO END TONIGHT

Putnam's Committee Adds 4 Hours to Drinking Day

Spurred by criticism of the delay that has marked consideration of liquor control legislation, Sen. Harry Putnam, chairman of the legal affairs committee, reported today that half of the bill had been reviewed and that his committee would not adjourn until a final draft has been completed. This is expected some time tonight.

Two changes of interest were made in the proposed act by the committee today. The first changes the business hours of liquor dispensaries from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m. to 8 a. m. until 11 p. m. local licensing boards also are given the option of permitting places to remain open as late as 2 a. m. Thus four hours are added to the drinking day, or at least to the drink buying day.

The other change would forbid any musical instruments, other than radio sets, in the new taverns. Many Beacon Hill observers saw this as a direct slap at the clubs. They also said it would be opposed by the musicians' organizations.

MONTAGUE AT SESSION

David T. Montague, chairman of the Boston Licensing Board, appeared before the committee today, but refused to divulge what he had said during the executive session.

Protests against the insertion of the word "sealed" in that clause of the bill which permits the transportation of package goods, apparently have gone unheeded. Unless this word is removed, hip flasks will be prohibited.

Senator Putnam said his committee would also report out tonight a bill providing for the collection of liquor taxes by means of revenue stamps.

It is believed this method not only will bring in the cash in advance of sales, but will prevent frauds now suspected in beer tax returns. It is also hailed as a blow at bootleggers who may hesitate to lay themselves open to charges of forging revenue stamps.

MAY GO THIRSTY

Massachusetts' thirst may be quenched only by 3.2 beer and wines on Dec. 6 while the rest of the country is enjoying the return of hard liquor—if the control bill is not passed by Dec. 5, with emergency provisions.

Manufacture, sale and distribution of liquor in Massachusetts will be governed by the beer bill enacted last April.

This bill provides only for the manufacture and sale of wines and malt beverages which contain not more than 3.2 of alcohol by weight.

Away down at the end of Chapter 120 is a three-line section which puts the teeth into this law.

"No person shall manufacture, sell, or expose, or keep for sale, or transport wines or malt beverages, except as authorized in this act."

When these two measures reach the joint ways and means committee, all control legislation will be well on its way toward enactment. The measure providing for a five-man control board, and placing liquor employes outside civil service, has already been reported out and will be read in the Senate Monday.

Indications that the proposed legislation would be rushed through the ways and means committee was seen today in the attitudes of Speaker Leverett Saltonstall, of the House and President Erland Fish, of the Senate.

of The Times. Then, utilizing its corrupt power over the courts and officials of the city, it endeavored to indict the publishers for libeling the mayor. Upon the refusal of the Grand Jury to bring in a bill of indictment, the Ring professed to discover that there was a flaw in the title to the real estate occupied by The Times, which would enable the city authorities to place a receiver in possession of its building and thus prevent its publication.

It requires little imagination to see that, in the case of a newspaper discharging what it conceived to be its duty of bold criticism of a political party, the license to publish might be cancelled on the allegation of an unwitting or trivial infraction of the code provisions regarding hours of work, wage scales or what not.

LET US not forget that the spirit of public office, like tyranny, feeds voraciously upon opportunity and fast grows rank. THIS is the DANGER, and it MUST BE MET BOLDLY AT THE GATE. The freedom of the press, if qualified, is destroyed.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S RIGHT PRIMARILY —not a publisher's right—THAT IS INVOLVED.

As Thomas Jefferson said, and his words go to the core of the matter, "OUR LIBERTY depends on the FREEDOM OF THE PRESS and THAT CANNOT BE LIMITED WITHOUT BEING LOST."

By Any Name He's a Payne to Court

"Charles Murray" came into municipal court today for the 80th time and under his 40th name!

Since he had made appearances Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and today of this week, each time under a different name, it was decided that it was high time to learn what his name really is.

So Probation Officer Frank Warren was given the task. He talked with the man for two hours and heard a dozen new names. Each one proved to be another nom de plume.

"But suppose you die," Warren finally said in desperation. "Tell me, for my own information, whom I should call then?"

"Do you really want to know?" asked "Charles Murray," apparently touched.

"Yes," said Warren.

"Well, when I die, call the medical examiner."

MORGENTHAU AT TREASURY HELM

Washington, Nov. 7 (INS)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., assumed the helm of the treasury today while speculation over the government's monetary policy continues to hold the attention of financial centers both at home and abroad.

For the fourth consecutive day the gold price remained unchanged at $33.56 per ounce, which was taken as an indication in some quarters that a temporary halt has been called in the administration's steady devaluation of the dollar.

Morgenthau's assumption of the treasury helm was made the occasion of President Roosevelt's asserting that the credit of the American government today "is as good as it ever has been." Roosevelt said the country owed a debt of gratitude to Secretary Woodin for his services.

Morgenthau took the oath in the oval room of the White House in the presence of the President, Secretary Woodin and other officials.

GIRL TEACHER KILLS HERSELF

She was an honor pupil at Saugus high school, where she graduated in 1922, and also at Jackson College, where she received a degree in 1926.

She taught in Saugus until 1929 and then was in the Winchester schools for three years. She had to give up teaching last year because of illness, and a short time ago went to live with her sister.

Voter for 73 Years Finds He's Alien

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 17 (INS)—Valentine Swody, 94-year-old mountaineer, today could hardly wait for the next election.

The aged mountain resident, who cast his first ballot in 1860 for Lincoln and has voted every year since with two exceptions, will ballot as a citizen of the United States for the first time in the next election.

Swody didn't know he wasn't entitled to vote until he applied for an old age pension and discovered he was an unnaturalized alien, born in Germany.

GOLDMAN URGES FEDERAL RULE OF EXCHANGES

N. Y. Stock Member Says Public Has Lost Faith

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Creation of a federal board to regulate stock exchange practices was recommended today in a letter to the Senate stock exchange committee from Henry Goldman, Jr., an exchange member.

Goldman submitted his recommendation in a letter to Chairman Fletcher, enclosing a letter he had written the exchange asserting "banks and bankers" have lost the confidence of the public.

The writer said his father for many years up to 1917 was senior member of Goldman Sachs & Co.

WANTS NEW RULES

He recommended that the government appoint a board of six men, composed of two members of the Senate banking committee, two members of the Exchange, and two business men to "establish rules and regulations of the various stock exchanges for trading in securities, which are not only legal but fair and equitable to all concerned."

The board should have power, he said, to "supervise, regulate and scrutinize the activities of stock exchanges, stock exchange firms and stock exchange members."

DRASTIC PROPOSAL

Goldman's recommendations, believed here the most drastic ever proposed by a member of the exchange, were placed before the committee today by Fletcher at the opening of the hearing into organization of General Theaters Equipment, Inc.

"In my opinion," Goldman said, "the banks, bankers and stock exchanges of the country have lost the confidence of the public, and I believe that this confidence must be restored as a part of the general program of recovery."

DOUGLAS MEN FOR NEW UNION

Brockton, Nov. 17—The Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen of the new union which waged the recent strike campaign for recognition as the workers' representative in NRA collective bargaining scored another victory here in the balloting of employes of the W. L. Douglas Co., last hold-out against the new union, it was revealed today.

The votes were cast yesterday under the supervision of the Boston regional labor board, and were to determine the fate of the company's contract with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and also what organization was to represent them.

Results, tabulated today, were as follows: For repudiation of the Boot and Shoe contract, 794; against, 270. For collective bargaining representative: The Brotherhood, 924; the Boot and Shoe, 293; shop crew, 17; open shop, 3; scattered, 2.

A similar poll is to be held Monday at the plant of the Joseph F. Corcoran Shoe Co., Stoughton, if members of the Brotherhood, now on strike, vote today to return to work.

KIDNAP MOTHER BEGS ROOSEVELT TO FREE HER FROM JAIL

'I AM HELD FOR BABY LOVE,' SHE WRITES

Adoption Laid to the Loss of Job; Child Hunt Is Pressed

To President Roosevelt, Mrs. Eunice Patrone turned today in the fight to retain her 4-year-old daughter, Jean Marie. In a personal letter to the President, the mother pleaded for his aid in restoring her from jail to her family.

Her appealing letter was written in Charles st. jail, where she is held for contempt of court in refusing to produce the girl and turn her over to the East Boston couple who legally adopted her. The letter follows:

"His Excellency,
"President Franklin D. Roosevelt,
"White House, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Mr. President:

"I am asking you, a great and good man to help me. Mr. President, I am in jail because I love my baby. For mother love I am being kept in jail. They call it contempt of court.

"The facts are that through lack of work of both my husband and myself, our baby's board became in arrears. The people where the child was being boarded instituted adoption proceedings against our protests.

"Finally a decree was entered by Judge Dolan, giving my baby to them. Mr. President, I love my baby. Please help me to undo this wrong. Restore me to my little family. I trust you. Don't fail me.

Yours truly,
(Signed)
MRS. EUNICE PATFONE.

Meanwhile today, little Jean Marie was still missing, her whereabouts unknown to the searchers.

Police and counsel for Mr. and Mrs. William Nickerson, of East Boston, the child's foster parents, went to New Hampshire late yesterday to locate the child. Once again, however, the quarry had disappeared.

The searchers went to a farm owned by Mrs. Patrone in Temple, N. H., which had been bequeathed to her by her foster parents. It was the same place at which a previous search had been made for the missing child.

The farmhouse was shuttered and closed and was surrounded by trackless snow. Neighbors, however, declared that a child, answering the general description of the missing girl, had been seen there up to the end of last week.

It was said that an elderly man and a girl, about 16 years of age, had been at the farmhouse with the child.

Wedding Bells This Time

Fifi D'Orsay, the movie star, says it's real love and bridal veils this time, and that she'll wed Maurice E. Hill, son of a Chicago building supply manufacturer, "within a few days." (International News Photos.)

FIFI AND HILL BACK IN LOVE

Hollywood, Nov. 17 — The "on again, off again" romance of Fifi D'Orsay, film actress, and Maurice E. Hill, son of a Chicago building manufacturer, was "on" again today. The couple has filed a notice of intention to wed.

Fifi said the license would be used "within a few days."

Although Miss D'Orsay once said she would marry Hill only in the event he continued his study of medicine and became a doctor, she apparently changed her mind, for Hill is in Hollywood with the announced purpose of finding a place for himself in the films.

Intensive campaigning during the past week has brought the following teams over the top in the drive: Chemical and dyestuffs, coal, electric, and Newton district, women's division.

2 MILLION PAID FOX ON CLAIM, CLARK SAYS

Mysterious Payment Draws Pecora's Fire at Probe

Washington, Nov. 17—A mysterious $2,000,000 payment to William Fox, film magnate, in 1929 by Harley L. Clarke, member of a syndicate seeking control of Fox Films, was aired today at the Senate banking inquiry.

Clarke testified the $2,000,000 was paid Fox in 1929 to settle his claims against the Mitchell Camera Co., one of the small companies acquired by the syndicate group. Clarke also gave Fox 25,000 shares of General Theatres Equipment and bought it back at $30 a share.

"That was a gift of $750,000 in addition to the $2,000,000 in cash?" asked special council, Ferdinand Pecora.

"Yes," the witness replied.

"Well," observed Pecora, "there is another Santa Claus in the record."

N. E. BANKS CALLED

The syndicate, headed by Albert H. Wiggin, then head of Chase National, ultimately drove Fox out of business. The syndicate's fight was financed by Chase Bank, which loaned $72,500,000 to the cause from Aug. 7, 1929 to May 7, 1930.

A list of 34 national banks, subpoenaed to report all loans for stock exchange accounts from 1928 to 1932, was made public by Pecora Thursday.

The list included:

Boston: First National Bank, National Shawmut Bank, Merchants National Bank.

Providence, R. I.: Industrial Trust Co., Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co.

Creation of a federal board to regulate stock exchange practices was recommended today in a letter to the Senate committee from Henry Goldman, Jr., an exchange member.

Goldman submitted his recommendation to Chairman Fletcher, enclosing a letter he had written the exchange assuring "banks and bankers" have lost the confidence of the public.

CHURCHMAN IN ROCKPORT TO FACE GRILL

Cregg Plans a Surprise in the Slaying of Rich Widow

Rockport, Nov. 17—A conference of officers engaged in the probe of the torch slaying of Mrs. Augusta Johnson will share honors today with the questioning of a leading member of the Swedish Congregational Church in connection with the crime.

Dist.-Atty. Hugh A. Cregg plans to arrive here today to open the conference of officers engaged in the case, as well as in the investigation of the murder of Arthur Oker 18 months ago, in almost exactly the same way as the widow was killed.

Police admitted that the church member to be questioned had financial dealings at times with each of the victims of the two slayings. His name has not been mentioned in the probe thus far and when detectives start to quiz him, many residents are expected to be surprised.

State troopers, who have been searching every residence and questioning all those living in the town, have completed their unusual canvass and their reports will be examined by officials tomorrow.

Dist. Atty. Cregg has stated that he expected to know within 48 hours after this examination started whether he would have sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest.

At the conference today all officers who have been engaged in the probe will express their views on the case.

COAKLEY SENDS CHEERY WORD TO FRIENDS

Hearing on Reinstatement Off for Week Due to Illness

Confined to bed but reported resting comfortably, Daniel H. Coakley, whose spectacular fight for reinstatement at the bar was halted by his collapse Wednesday, may not be able to appear before the Supreme court for a week, it was stated today.

The breakdown occurred at his home, 52 Parsons st., Brighton, on the eve of Coakley's personal appearance before Judge Fred T. Field.

READY IN WEEK

"It will not be possible for Mr. Coakley to leave his bed for some days," said Dr. Henry S. Rowen, his physician. "He is suffering from an attack of syncope. I am hopeful however, that within a week he will be in shape to have the hearing resumed."

Coakley, himself, in a statement issued through his son, Dan, made light of his affliction, and insisted he would be up and about shortly.

"I am feeling very comfortable," he said. "I had a brief attack which I believe has entirely cleared up. I am staying in bed because the doctor and the family insist on it. I hope to be out within 48 hours. I wish the newspapers would publish that I am not seriously sick so that my friends everywhere might know the truth."

FLY READY FOR CALL

When the Supreme Court hearing resumed, Michael A. Sullivan of counsel for Coakley, announced that he was ill, and Judge Field continued the case indefinitely. Gov. Ely, now in Washington, is reported to be prepared to testify for Coakley when the hearing comes up again.

Olden was arrested at Nantucket in June when federal dry agents seized his plane and found 100 gallons of assorted liquor in it.

COLD LOOSENS GRIP, RAIN DUE

The cold wave that held Boston and all New England in its grip since Tuesday gave way today to rising temperatures, which may be followed by snow or rain tomorrow.

From a low of 19 above at 5 a. m., the mercury had moved up to 25 by 10 o'clock.

The departing frigid snap, however, has left no less than five deaths in its wake. Patrick Martin, 60, and Joseph Wesolowski, 76, were frozen to death in Providence, R. I., while Paul Pivin, 80, died from exposure.

Alabama Coed's Lovelorn Letter Stumps Harvard

Harvard men went into an academic huddle today to decide whether it takes a bit of chivalry or a spirited ounce of adventure to answer a lovelorn letter from an Alabama co-ed.

What to do about it taxed the ingenuity of Harvard undergraduates as they published the southern continuity in the Harvard Crimson and are now toasting to luck or something.

The missive was addressed to "Mr. X, Harvard University" and signed "Mary Kate Troup, Alabama College, Montevallo, Ala."

Whether the joke is on Harvard or whether Mary Kate has serious intentions in seeking a Harvard athlete of broad A accent hasn't been decided yet.

"Would it be bad of me to ask you to give this to someone else if you're in love—or have some kinds restrictions on your correspondence? Please don't be in love—at least too much so to answer once anyhow," the girl wrote on in naive vein.

At the offices of the Harvard Crimson the editors were decidedly cynical.

"We get letters like that every now and then," one hard-boiled collegiate editor announced. "This one was a bit more interesting and entertaining, so we published it."

CURLEY DENIES NEW U. S. JOB

That "big federal job" of Mayor Curley's is just Dame Rumor flirting with him again, he said today.

The mayor denied, with a noticeable edge on his voice, stories that he will have a hand in national administration of the $3,300,000,000 emergency re-employment fund.

"My job is right here in the mayor's office until the end of the term," he said. "And I have plenty to do. Dame Rumor has always been kind to me—and some of my enemies were in Washington a week ago."

'Save Little Sister -:- From Harm and Death'

ROBERTA

ARLENE

Safe in their own warm home while biting winds chill the homeless the two sisters of little Jean Marie Patrone pray for her safety. Somewhere in the north country police hope to find the child, who was stolen from her frantic foster parents by the mother who languishes in jail, ignorant of the child's whereabouts. Clues to the child were found at a deserted Temple, N. H., farmhouse, but the child had been spirited away by an old man and a young girl so that lead proved futile. (Boston American photo.)

DIVORCE PLOT IS LAID TO WIFE

A Harvard Medical School professor, another husband, and three wives secured their marital freedom today in Middlesex probate court in uncontested divorce cases in which all charged cruelty.

Dr. William J. Crozier, the professor, was granted a decree nisi from Mrs. Blanche B. Crozier, of Cambridge, whom he married in June, 1915.

The professor testified that since that date she had been mentally cruel to him, on one occasion suggesting that he be unfaithful to her in the presence of witness, so she could obtain a divorce.

His wife continually nagged him, he said, until finally he was forced to leave her on advice of a physician.

Mrs. Ruth E. Henderson, of Boston, who was granted a decree nisi from William A. Henderson, of Winchester, testified that only a week after their marriage on July 24, 1931, at Reading he struck her.

She testified that in the summer of 1932, when she and her husband were supposed to be chaperoning two other couples, he got very drunk and struck her when she remonstrated.

Mrs. Kathleen R. Wood, of Watertown, was granted a decree from Donald A. Wood after she testified that he struck her and at one time hurled a bottle of milk at her because his dinner was late.

A six-foot husband weighing 200 pounds, but one she had to support, she claimed, was the basis of Mrs. Jessie P. Berry's difficulties.

"Overcoat Parade" is no longer an apt name for this event. It's become almost a stampede! And we're not surprised. Most men still know a good thing when they see it!

We knew that a lot of men would need new overcoats this winter. And we believed that many could not consider higher prices. So we took a big gamble! Back in July, we visited America's topnotch overcoat weavers; and we hand-picked a grand lot of huskies. If prices went down, we stood to take a good licking. If prices went up, it meant good business for us—and for our customers. Well, you know what's happened to prices since July!

—and that in a nutshell is why our "Overcoat Parade" is causing so much excitement. Bolton Shetlands are today way up at "high C"! Sedan Worsted-Curls (the kind that wear like iron) are in the luxury class. But just as long as our present stocks last, we're going to sell them for $22. 'Holmes Hit Him and We Threw Him in Bay,' Says Killer

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 17—Following is the text of the confession which authorities said was made by Thomas H. Thurmond in the kidnaping and slaying of Brooke Hart:

I, Thomas Harold Thurmond, voluntarily make this statement to R. E. Vetterli, Edward E. Conroy, Harold E. Anderson, Special Agents of the U. S. Department of Justice, and to William J. Emig, sheriff of Santa Clara County, J. N. Black, chief of police of San Jose and Earle G. Hamilton, deputy sheriff, that I have known Jack Holmes approximately one year in San Jose, that approximately five or six weeks ago he approached me with a plan to kidnap Brooke Hart and hold him for ransom.

We discussed this matter on one or two occasions and on Thursday, Nov. 9, 1933, shortly before 6 p. m. Jack Holmes and I saw Brooke Hart came towards the parking lot where he used to park his Studebaker roadster.

Jack Holmes and I had previously discussed just how we would kidnap Brooke Hart. Holmes was to get in the car of Brooke as it approached Market st. and I was to follow in another car which belonged to Holmes.

ACTUAL KIDNAPING

On this particular 9th of November, 1933, Brooke Hart obtained his car from the parking lot and drove out the driveway towards Market st. Jack Holmes took the car of Brooke Hart on the curb and opened the door with one hand and had the other in his pocket as though he had a gun. He forced Brooke Hart to go away with him.

I was parked in Holmes' coach in Market st. close to Post st. and I saw Holmes drive by in Brooke's roadster and I followed.

When Holmes stopped the car they both got out and Holmes told Hart to get in the back of the coach I was driving.

I was sitting at the right of Holmes, we turned north and drove through Irvington to Alvarado then directly to the San Mateo bridge. We stoped about half a mile out on the bridge, at which time Hart was ordered out of the car and Holmes walked back of the car to the rear, hit him over the head with a brick.

"When Holmes first struck Hart over the head he hollered "Help! Help!" but Holmes hit him on the head again with the brick and knocked him unconscious.

Then I took some bailing wire from the car, which I had purchased during the afternoon at a hardware store in Santa Clara for 55 cents, and bound Hart's arms around his body, up close to his shoulders.

Holmes then told me to take hold of the upper part of Hart's body and I took hold of him at the knees and together we lifted him on to the railing of the bridge and tossed him into the bay. I recall as we lifted him onto the bridge he struggled slightly.

We then turned around and returned to San Jose. While we were riding in the car with Hart before we reached the bridge we asked him to turn over his pocketbook and money, which he did. To the best of my recollection, the wallet contained a $5 bill and $2.50 in silver. We divided the money and I kept the wallet.

After I returned to San Jose by agreement I returned to San Francisco in my father's automobile and it was our understanding that I was to go from San Francisco to Oakland and en route throw the wallet into the bay.

DEMAND FOR RANSOM

By agreement I was also to telephone Mr. Hart from San Francisco, advising him that his son was kidnaped and being held for $40,000 ransom.

Some man answered the telephone and I inquired for Mr. Hart. Then some girl answered the telephone and I told her that her brother was being held for $40,000 ransome and if the family notified the police they would never see Brooke Hart again.

Instead of taking the ferry from San Francisco to Oakland to throw away the wallet, I walked down the waterfront for two or three blocks and tossed the wallet into the Bay.

Holmes went over with a message for Mr. Hart. This message was to the effect that their son was O. K. but if the police were notified any more it would be too bad. And on this card we also specified the number of bills to make up the $40,000 ransom, and put in future instructions.

ARRANGES SIGNAL

I had obtained an envelope at home and when I got to Tracy, enroute to Sacramento, I addressed the envelope to Mr. Hart and later placed the card, printed by Holmes, and mailed from Sacramento that night.

I was watching Holmes when he wrote the letter and I read it. The letter specified that Mr. Hart place the numeral one in the window of his store if he was willing to negotiate.

I did not see Holmes until the following day. He and I both went by Hart's store Tuesday and both saw the numeral one in the window and that night, in accordance with our agreement, called Charles O'Brien, Jr., personal friend of Brooke Hart, and gave O'Brien a message to deliver to Mr. Hart, demanding further action.

"BRING $40,000"

This call was placed by Holmes from a pay station. Mr. Hart was told to take a satchel with the $40,000 and place it on the seat beside him and drive his son's roadster toward Los Angeles.

After this call had been completed Holmes and I drove to Morgan Hill and back, but we could not see Mr. Hart drive out in the car, and so about 8:45 I telephoned Mr. Hart from a pay station at a parking lot in San Jose.

I asked Mr. Hart why he had not kept his previous appointment and he told me he wanted further proof that we were holding his son.

About noon on Nov. 15, Holmes printed another letter, addressed the envelope and mailed this letter in the postoffice.

We told Mr. Hart if he were willing to go through with the negotiations and pay the $40,000 he was to put the numeral 2 in his window and advise. If this were done Brooke would return.

FELL INTO TRAP

At 5:45 on Nov. 15, I met Holmes by a garage and Holmes told me that the numeral 2 had been placed in the window.

We then went to Sabacce Brothers garage in South Market st. and I telephoned from a pay telephone in the rear of the garage. I told Hart I had seen the number in the window and that Mr. Hart or some member of his family drive the car and go at once. I told Hart I wanted his answer definitely, and "yes" or "no."

About the time I finished this call I was taken into custody by Sheriff Emig.

(Signed.) THOMAS THURMOND.

San Jose garage while the latter was allegedly making further ransom demands on Alex J. Hart, wealthey San Jose merchant and father of young Hart, said no one except the two men was involved.

Holmes was later arrested at a hotel, to which officers were led by Thurmond, and was taken to San Francisco, where he was questioned by state and federal authorities.

FIND WITNESS

The two men were temporarily held under the federal kidnaping law, but Dist. Atty. Thomas said they would be prosecuted under the state law which makes the penalty for kidnaping, where the victim suffers bodily injury, death or life imprisonment.

Thomas said he has several witnesses who heard young Hart cry for help as the kidnapers threw him from the bridge.

Thomas' announcement eliminated the possibility that Thurmond and Holmes would be tried on a plain murder charge.

"The kidnaping statute will bring swifter and surer justice," he said.

GREATER HOUGHTON DAY

Christmas Is Five Weeks Away

Open a charge account

If you have a charge account at any other store, we can open one for you at a moment's notice Saturday. If not, we suggest that you come down today (Friday) and make arrangements so that your charge account will be ready to use Saturday. Credit office, seventh floor.

Read the 9 o'clock door crashers

As you can see by reading the items, we are offering limited quantities (really a clearance of odds and ends) of desirable merchandise at ridiculous prices. First come, first served. No mail or phone orders on door crashers, of course. Original prices are quoted. In some instances, intermediate markdowns have been taken. Additional door crashers on the other pages.

Mail orders filled

We will fill mail orders only if postmarked not later than Saturday, November 18th. All mail orders subject to quantities on hand.

Phone orders filled

A staff of 50 experienced telephone shoppers will be on duty from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Saturday. No telephone orders will be accepted Friday. All orders subject to quantities on hand.

Comparative prices

In practically every instance the comparative price quoted is our own every day regular price . . . the price the article will be after Saturday. Believe your eyes! The savings are all we say they are.

Greater Houghton Day has been proclaimed as one of America's Great Sales . . . that it stands head and shoulders above any sale in New England is better attested by a careful perusal of this page and the 15 pages that follow than by any statement we can make.

Because the price of merchandise is up and is expected to stay up, this Greater Houghton Day should be the most important we have ever held. It offers what is possibly the last opportunity in years to buy at sensationally low Greater Houghton Day prices. Hundreds of items are offered as low as the NRA law allows. Please read each of the 16 pages. It will pay you many times over.

Christmas Is Five Weeks Away

2200 extra employees

We're giving extra employment to 2200 additional salespeople, cashiers, wrappers and delivery men Saturday. Please be patient. Keep smiling, keep happy.

Please carry small packages

Because of the tremendous number of packages handled on Greater Houghton Day, 3 to 10 days must be allowed for delivery of Greater Houghton Day purchases. We will appreciate your cooperation if you will carry small parcels.

Nothing sold to dealers

We reserve the right to limit quantities sold to any one customer. Nothing will be sold to dealers.

Legal Stamps given!

In addition to low prices we will give one Legal Stamp with every 10c worth of purchase. You get $2.00 in cash or $2.50 in merchandise for each full book. Saturday is a good day to start a book. In fact, Saturday would be an ideal day to fill a book. Special stamp desks on the street, third and basement floors.

Ample quantities

Except in a few instances (notably the 9 o'clock door crashers) we have huge quantities of each article. Of course, with prices so sensationally low, we cannot guarantee that quantities will last all day, but in most cases our tremendous preparations should be insurance against disappointment for late shoppers.

U. S. SLASHES RED TAPE ON 100,000 JOBS HERE

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Of all the announcements by recently elected candidates for office, one by Fiorello La Guardia, of New York, strikes me as the most courageous and the most sensible, however, utopian and idealistic it may sound at first. Personally, I do not believe he can live up to his resolution. It would take a will of iron and a heart of ice to do so. But you may remember the occasion on which Aunt Polly said of Tom Sawyer, "It was a good lie. Similarly, La Guardia's was a good resolution, even if he can't keep it.

He is going to cut out public dinners! If you have ever seen a week's engagement list of an important municipal figure, let alone one of state or federal dignity, you will know what that means. Jimmy Walker estimated that his dinners averaged three every evening of the week. Mayor O'Brien not at first thought the social light that Jimmy was, equalled that record. It is likely that a record of the invitations that come into the office of the mayor of Boston would make you gasp.

Let us hope that La Guardia can keep his resolution. Let us hope that by precept and example it can be extended until all public servants will be able to cut out most of this meaningless, laborious, time-wasting, exhausting handshaking, photographing, dining out, pushing buttons, saying "just a word," which doubles the weight of executive burden and halves the efficiency of the office.

In Washington I suspect we owe the recent habits to Harding, who was the original boy who couldn't say no. But Coolidge, who was more politician than statesman, kept it up, particularly the absurd costume photographs in cowboy suits and Indian headdress and all that. Hoover was forever being photographed with visiting organizations of business men, though he did cut out the imbecile handshaking fetes of his predecessors.

Mr. Roosevelt's physical condition makes it necessary for him to avoid all such monkeyshines and at the same time gives him a glorious excuse for avoiding them. Bit by bit, I think, under his influence, we shall get away from the fool notion that the democracy owns the President, and that he owes them every spare minute and every last ounce of strength for purely social and exhibitionistic purposes.

Once there was, in the words of Shakespeare, a divinity that doth hedge a king. There should be a dignity and a certain withdrawal about the President of the United States, and, indeed, about all chief executives. Mayor Curley has a very exact and proper sense of his official dignity, although he succumbs all too easily to the custom of being photographed with all kinds of visiting firemen and pretty ladies. . . .

Without that sense of dignity the democracy will ride roughshod. A newspaper clipping informs us that the new mayor of Pittsburgh—a Democrat—is going to move his desk out of the executive chamber on the fifth floor and put it down in the city hall lobby, where everybody can see him and get him. The first result will be that he will be submerged by cranks of all varieties. The second will be that he will catch a frightful bronchial cold and will take to his bed—that is, if his city hall lobby is anything like others that I have sneezed in. At any rate, he is either silly or an excellent publicist.

The same way with the new Socialist mayor of Bridgeport. A Socialist mayor in a manufacturing community will probably be a good thing, if he is honest and aggressive and competent. At least, he will frighten all the mayors of neighboring industrial cities and start them thinking pretty seriously about their jobs. This new mayor is not a radical. He is going to carry on a modest administration. But there is such a thing as overdoing it

* * *

First, he dismisses his city chauffeur and stores the mayor's car for the winter. He can walk, he says. That is probably a sincere gesture, but a stupid one. The mayor of Bridgeport is going to be a tired and overworked man. He is going to have the welfare of thousands of people depending on his brains and courage and—incidentally—his good health. The difference between walking home on a cold night after a hard day at the office and being driven home may be of considerable importance to the people of Bridgeport. It is not intelligent economy or intelligent socialism, either.

And I do not really see why he need have held his inaugural banquet in a lunch cart. From the fact that there were photographs taken, I suspect that the proceeding belongs in the same class as Coolidge's cowboy suit. A mayor does not have to have an inaugural banquet. Or, if he has one, he doesn't need to have photographers. One hates to see socialism thus succumbing to the capitalist press.

If La Guardia can disentangle himself from official dining, photographing and all that, he will be the eighth wonder of the world. More, he will automatically qualify as Republican candidate for President in 1936. After which, his days of privacy will be over

NOTED DOCTORS HERE TO WATCH OPERATIONS

Surgeons, Who Visit a Clinic a Year, Are Lahey's Guests

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

They don't have a president or treasurer. They won't be bothered with by-laws. They call themselves the "Visiting Surgeons Club" and they are in all the country's eminent medical men.

Today as they arrived in Boston as the guests of the Lahey clinic to watch Dr. Frank Lahey, a member of the club, perform thyroid operations at the New England Deaconess hospital they refused to be entertained or to entertain.

Three years ago this unique organization came into being when a group of progressive medical men got together and decided to have an annual meeting dedicated to the progress of science.

Its purpose is purely professional. It bothers with nothing social.

A CLINIC A YEAR

The first year the club members and their guests visited the Mayo clinic. Last year they were spectators at the Cleveland clinic, Cleveland, O. And today they began a two-day session at the New England Deaconess Hospital, where, as guests of the Lahey clinic, the will watch 20 operations daily. Round-table discussions exclusively academic climax the day's viewing.

DISCUSS OPERATIONS

In the afternoon they watched duty clinic performances and at the end of the day are to discuss and exchange points of view.

At noon they were the guests of the hospital at luncheon at Palmer Memorial, a Deaconess Hospital unit.

These outstanding surgeons, coming from all parts of the country to Boston this morning, came purely in the interests of science.

Since they have dedicated their membership to the acquisition of medical knowledge, their meeting is one totally instructive and absolutely devoid of anything social.

Dr. G. S. Houghton Is Dead in Belmont

Dr. George S. Houghton, 67, director of the Distinguished Service Foundation of Optometry, died at his home in Belmont today.

He organized the New England Council of Optometrists to promote research and greater conservation of vision. In 1926-1928 he was president of the American Optometric Association.

Norwood Tannery Under Strike Guard

An extra force of police and private detectives was on duty today at the tanneries of the Winslow Brothers & Smith Co., Norwood where a strike is in progress. Gov. Frank G. Allen is chairman of the directors of the company.

X-Rays Offer Jury Lesson on Anatomy

Dr. Aubrey Hampton, of Arlington, with a half dozen X-ray plates and a special lighting contrivance for their background, conducted an anatomy class in federal court today at the hearing of Miss Sara McCue's $100,000 suit for injuries suffered in an auto accident a year ago.

Miss McCue, a nurse living in Bennington Vt., is suing William R. Driver, Jr., of Milton, owner of the car that hit her and Elijah Lee, Jr., of the Harvard Business school, its alleged driver at the time of the accident, for $50,000 each.

Dr. Hampton displaying the X-ray plates against the lighted background behind the witness stand for the edification of Judge Brewster and the jury, outlined and named the various bones shown where the victim suffered fractured ribs fractures of three vertebrae and injuries to chest, back and shoulder blades. Medical testimony of yesterday concerned injuries to the eyes, head and ears.

Mrs. Marion C. Doherty of Muirdock at Brighton at whose home Miss McCue was nursing at the time, testified to driving her to church just before the accident and of visiting her later at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, noting her weak condition.

DRUGGISTS IN FUND DENIAL

Martin E. Adamo president of the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical Association issued emphatic denial to the reported rumor that drugs are wasting a total of $200,000 in cash to fight for a law permitting them to sell liquor on the pre-prohibition basis without prescriptions.

"This rumor is absolutely without foundation and is only one of the many malicious falsehoods going about in an attempt to cast aspersions upon the honesty and integrity of our druggists," he said. "We are merely asking the privilege to do business as it have been doing since 1875. Moreover, we are also expressing the sentiments of more than 300,000 highly reputed citizens of our state who have petitioned the Legislature for this permission.

"Whenever we are disposed to raise such huge sums we will do so in the interests of the many druggists who have been driven out of business in the red, for several years," concluded Mr. Adamo.

Gardner, Amesbury Lead Auto Safety

Gardner and Amesbury, which have gone through nine successive months of the current year without a single motor vehicle fatality, are still Massachusetts' chief candidates for the endurance prize in the national traffic safety contest according to an announcement made today by the Governor's committee on street and highway safety. Sixteen cities in the state went through September without a single serious accident.

Here's Your Chance to Buy Speedboat

Anyone interested in a 34-foot motor boat with a nine-foot beam and a 450 h. p. Liberty motor is advised to take a look at the C-508 moored at the Appraisers Stores in Atlantic ave.

The speedboat valued at $900 has been ordered on the auction block at the Army Base, South Boston next Tuesday morning by James J. Maynard, collector of customs.

Weekly Payrolls Show Steady Gain

Continued improvement over a period of six months in employment, weekly payrolls and average weekly earnings for the first time since 1929 was recorded in a report issued by the research and statistics committee of the State Recovery Board.

SISTERS FIGHT OVER SPOUSE, WIFE WINS

In-law Denies Arthur O'Leary Cruel at Divorce Trial

Mrs. Mary A. O'Leary, of Spring st., Cambridge, whose sister testified in her husband's behalf in her suit for divorce, is a free woman again today, having been granted a decree by Judge John C. Leggat in Middlesex probate court.

A cross-suit of the husband, Arthur J. O'Leary of Henderson st., Somerville, for separation, was denied by Judge Leggat.

DISPUTES SISTER

Mrs. O'Leary's petition alleged cruel and abusive treatment and during her testimony charged that her husband frequently came home drunk, used abusive language and struck her.

Her sisters, Miss Catherine Louchanee, 22 and Helen, 18, both of whom live in the Henderson at home with O'Leary, were at the hearing. Miss Catherine Louchanee testified she had no ill feeling toward her married sister, but contradicted the latter's testimony that O'Leary made a practice of coming home in an intoxicated condition.

She testified that when O'Leary went out he usually came home at 11:30 p. m. and was not under the influence of liquor. When he did not go out he usually retired about 8 p. m., she said.

HAPPY WITH O'LEARY

She admitted she seldom saw her married sister, but declared that it was because the latter did not wish to see her or her sister. She said there was no reason why they should live at O'Leary's home except that they had done so before this wife left him.

She explained that O'Leary paid the household expenses and that an uncle and aunt provided her and her sister with clothing.

Judge Leggat finally gave Mrs. O'Leary her decree and denied the husband a petition for separation.

First Chinese Tried for Non-Support

Wong King, proprietor of a Washington st., South End restaurant, was brought into Municipal Judge Francis J. Good's court today, the first of his race to be charged with non-support.

Despite the plea of King's attorney, Clarence Rowley, the case was continued until January, for final disposition. The lawyer asked an immediate settlement because he was sure of his client's innocence.

For half an hour he explained Chinese custom makes the husband lord and master of his house. King supplied his wife with all her needs, he said.

He sent his sons to college here, and two of them are now engaged on Chinese engineering projects, Rowley continued, and there would have been no trouble but for a third daughter, Sue Ah Wah, who proved a failure in business and has caused his mother to file these charges.

Chinese custom forbids that he supply his wife with cash, and if he did, she would promptly give it to the son, Rowley explained. Since King's refusal to aid the son, she has subjected the father to many discomforts, he said. During the last few cold nights, according to testimony, she pulled off his bed clothes.

Malden to Redeem Grocery Notes

Retail grocers of Malden were made happy today when they were informed that the city of Malden would redeem the six per cent notes issued for groceries supplied to welfare recipients since Jan. 30.

Grocers may have the notes redeemed in cash by presenting them to City Treasurer Walter E. Milliken. Many of the grocers have discounted the notes with local banks, which are said to hold the larger part of the notes. The notes were issued in denominations of $50 and upwards and more than $30,000 worth are outstanding.

Pipes Win Favor With Girls

OH, YUM! English girls have taken up pipe smoking in a somewhat serious way, lightening the process by using cigarette tobacco. In so far as Marion Goode is concerned, you will notice that she approaches the fad in confident fashion and seems to be having no difficulty.

OKAY SO FAR With Claudia Churchill matters are progressing fairly well, though she is in a watchful waiting attitude, maintaining a pleasantly neutral reaction to the experience.

NOT FOR ME! Helen Jones, with the other girls, is a member of the dancing forces of the Metropolitan Theater, is inclined to believe that the habit will not work out. One inhale and her decision was reached.

Girl Stenos in Hysterics at Antics of Peeper

A man who pops out of hiding places in women's washrooms is the new Federal Building scaring women employes sometimes into hysterics, was being sought by officials and police today.

His latest appearance was on the seventh floor when he sent a young woman employe screaming into the corridor, and escaped down a stairway.

Official were puzzled by the intrusions, stating that a girl that the man wore a white hat similar to a woman's.

A general hunt was started because of the many exits in the building, and the crowds which use the elevator, met with no success.

Custodian Harry A. Vose was notified and attempted to get a more detailed description from the frightened girl. Officials admitted that similar incidents have been reported recently, but expressed their helplessness because the washroom doors are not locked.

Employes however have been instructed to watch for a suspicious appearing man, it is hoped for a return for further activities.

BARTLETT TELLS CITIES AND TOWNS HOW TO GET AID

Big Rush Begins to Speed Works; Men on Dole Lists to Get First Call; Programs to Be Mapped

Joseph W. Bartlett, U. S. federal administrator of civil works in Massachusetts, today issued instructions governing town and city projects which are expected to provide jobs for 100,000 Bay State unemployed within a fortnight with an estimated $140,000,000 of U. S. money to pay the bill.

"Orders from Washington are to cut red tape," said Administrator Bartlett, "and red tape will be cut.

Just what needs to be done is this:

Mayors of cities or chairmen of town boards of selectmen must outline programs of quick action work to be done in their communities. Work that can be started within 24 hours or so.

WELFARE LIST FIRST

"They must also estimate the number of unemployed they can put to work. Welfare list men first. Then others.

Then the mayors or selectmen sign a simple application blank for the money they need. My board, if the project is not unreasonable on its face, obtains the application. Application and okay go that day to Washington by wire. And, if I'm not mistaken in the Washington set-up, authorization to start work—and pesha bir a first installment of cash—will be back by wire within a matter of hours.

Then, if the local community has its own work program in common sense order and knows where to put hands on men who need jobs, there's no reason why the shift to construction jobs with turnpike, Road repair where towns and cities don't do it. I think the governor wants to clean up the old holes in Boston harbor.

How much money will be available in Massachusetts? Well, you can figure it as well as I. There's $560,000,000 for the nation.

"We don't know yet if the territories are to be included.

"The allotment will be roughly by population, slightly modified by amounts of unemployment. Population is near enough.

"Let's say there are 120,000,000 in the country. That divides into $560,000,000 about 2½ times.

"If Massachusetts has a population of 4,250,000, she might hope, I'd guess, to multiply that by 3½. Don't say I'm promising that. I don't know. But I should think that would be the way to figure it.

"One thing to remember in estimating the time to put this new plan into effect is the fact that we already have a set-up in Massachusetts for the expenditure of federal money on public works.

"As chairman of the state's emergency finance board, I've already approved allotments which will soon have amounted to $10,000,000. We've got the machinery. We've got this new money. It's fair to say it's almost an overnight proposition."

Give Men Jobs, Mayor's Aim

CAMBRIDGE

Can states and cities spend more than $1,000,000 to carry out the program to put 100,000 men to work in Massachusetts? Mayor Richard M. Russell said today:

"We are trying to get one share," he said. "There are a dozen or more civic projects I feel sure will qualify for federal funds.

"There is the Concord ave. reconstruction, a sewerage construction, new water mains, repairs to the Public Library and reconstruction on Kossuth st."

HAVERHILL

Haverhill authorities, conferring at the State House today with Col. Works Administrator Bartlett, said they have plans already outlined to put 150 unemployed to work at once on a project of exercise construction.

QUINCY

Quincy will work in three of new city work projects for a public work construction including water works, sewerage, etc., if possible funds were made available for building a new hospital, Mayor Thayer in 1931 announced. Hope to can put 800 men to work in 24 hours if the money is available, the mayor declared.

WEYMOUTH

Weymouth selectmen were drawing up plans today for public works projects under the "overnight" federal $4 billion appropriation to put 500 to work in Massachusetts with in two weeks.

The Weymouth project probably will include draining of stamp lands and paving of a number of streets.

About 150 men, now on welfare jobs can be put to work if federal money is obtained, it was said today.

HULL

Hull authorities said they have various projected plans for employing jobless men. Work on a fire house was held between White Head and Allerton on the ocean side.

Town Atty. Joseph Beal, Selectmen Daniel Murphy and Moderator Herbert Hunting will go tonight to Washington to urge approval of their project.

SOME FOR STATE PROJECTS

"I think, too, there'll be some of this money turned over to state and metropolitan district for their quick action construction projects.

"I've heard talk of several. Like sidewalks along the New Boston turnpike. Road repair where towns and cities don't do it. I think the governor wants to clean up the old holes in Boston harbor.

"How much money will be available in Massachusetts? Well, you can figure it as well as I. There's $560,000,000 for the nation.

"We don't know yet if the territories are to be included.

"The allotment will be roughly by population, slightly modified by amounts of unemployment. Population is near enough.

"Let's say there are 120,000,000 in the country. That divides into $560,000,000 about 2½ times.

"If Massachusetts has a population of 4,250,000, she might hope, I'd guess, to multiply that by 3½. Don't say I'm promising that. I don't know. But I should think that would be the way to figure it.

"One thing to remember in estimating the time to put this new plan into effect is the fact

U. S. Allots $100,000 for Wakefield Water

Wakefield has been allotted $100,000 by the federal government for water service extension according to Chairman Rice of P. W. A. OVERTON VOTE PLOT BARED

New Orleans, La., Nov. 17 (AP)—Edward Bilise, who served as an Overton committeeman in the primary election won by Senator John M. Overton today, told the Senate committee investigating the election that attempts were made to stuff the ballot boxes in his precinct by Overton officials.

Bilise said he had prevented it but that when the count was made, 37 ballots were found under the ballot box. He said also that he was discharged as New Orleans dock board patrolman the next day.

Sixteen of the names found under the box he testified were for Edwin Hammond who was defeated and who filed charges of fraud against Overton. He made the count he said 24 for Pecora and only 230 for Overton, a compared to 191 for Hammond and 29 for Overton, reported on the first count.

He testified that before he went to the box he was given a list of names of Democratic candidates, and was told to vote for them. He said he refused to do so.

One of the three, Joseph, 12 months, was badly burned. He was reported in stable condition. Mrs. Tavares was also burned about the hands and face.

DRYS PLAN LAST DYING BATTLE

Washington, Nov. 17 (INS)—A surprise court attempt to prevent prohibition repeal from becoming effective December 5 was being planned today by a group of fighting drys.

Canon William Sheafe Chase, secretary of the International Reform Federation, disclosed that the movement is now under way to prevent ratification from becoming effective, but that the court battle will be continued in any event.

"We must find a way to hold up repeal on Dec. 5, and we have plans," he said.

One case in Vermont offers the drys a chance to assail the constitutionality of repeal in the high court, he said, although the move before the Vermont Supreme Court cannot be complete until in January.

"A case involving the constitutionality of the method of ratification is certain to reach the Supreme Court," Chase added.

ALIEN PACIFIC FLEET BEATEN

At Sea With U. S. Fleet, Nov. 17 (AP)—Ships of the United States fleet having saved the Pacific coast from theoretical invasion by an "alien" fleet, were bound today for their home ports.

The mighty sea battle ending late yesterday closed the three-day maneuvers off the California coast and once again displayed the adaptability of aircraft in warfare.

The navy's queen of the skies, the giant dirigible Macon, making its maiden trip as part of the United States fleet, however, was twice destroyed, theoretically, in the war games. In the concluding problem of the maneuvers—the repulse of an alien fleet—the Macon, serving as a scouting ship for the defending forces, was outdone by the cruiser forces in locating the "invading" ships.

Auto Lights Guide -:- 'Racket' Exhumation

A dramatic setting was presented when the body of John M. Hinckley was exhumed last night at Coldbrook Cemetery, Whitman, where it was buried July 14, two days after being removed from a pauper's grave at Saugus. Auto headlights glared on the scene as disinterment took place in the cold. Hinckley, Holliston odd jobs man, is supposed to have been slain in connection with insurance frauds, and exhumation was decided in an attempt to confirm the theory that he was slugged to death and his body then driven over by an auto to simulate an accident. WOOD DEFENDS LEGION POLICY

Indianapolis, Nov. 17 (AP)—Preparing to defend his administration of the New Mexican department of the American Legion against charges of political manipulation, Osborne C. Wood, son of the late Major Gen. Leonard Wood, today expressed "surprise that Louis Johnson, former national commander, should associate himself with the prosecution."

Three members of the national executive committee convened as a court at Legion headquarters today to hear the trial.

"It seems incredible," said Wood, adjutant-general of New Mexico and commander of the state department of the Legion, "that Johnson, who as national commander appointed a committee that investigated these charges, should now appear to prosecute them."

The charges allege fraudulent obtainment of Legion memberships to control state headquarters and conventions, and permitting Legion officials to hold political offices.

BANKER SHOT BY KIDNAPER

Chicago, Nov. 17 (INS)—Russell L. Blount, president of the Currency Exchange, was in critical condition today from a bullet wound inflicted by one of three gunmen who attempted to kidnap him last night. Police believe the kidnapers planned to force Blount to open the Exchange vaults.

Answering a ring at the door Blount was confronted by two of the bandits. As they pushed inside with guns drawn, the banker drew a tear gas gun and fired. The pair retreated.

As the banker reached the rear door to lock it a third bandit entered, and Blount, attempting to grapple with him, was shot in the right side. The gunman fled.

Hinckley Body Brought to Hub for Magrath Autopsy

Conferences of various officials today marked the investigation into the death of John M. Hinckley, Holliston odd job man, believed slain in connection with insurance frauds.

The body of Hinckley, found in Saugus, an apparent victim of a hit-and-run motorist, was in the North Grove st. morgue waiting an autopsy by Dr. George B. Magrath.

Police and officials of Essex, Middlesex and Norfolk counties expected Dr. Magrath's examination would confirm their belief Hinckley was slugged and an auto driven over his body to simulate an accident.

FINDINGS UP TO MAGRATH

The body was exhumed at Coldbrook Cemetery, Whitman, where it was buried July 14 two days after being taken from a pauper's grave at Saugus. Dr. Magrath's autopsy is expected to be performed tomorrow or Monday.

Today Asst. Dist. Atty. Austin A. Green of Essex County is scheduled to confer with Police Chief John T. Stuart of Saugus. Chief Lewis T. Holbrook of Holliston, and State Detectives Edward P. O'Neil and Edward F. Sherlock at Salem. Later they are expected to visit the place in Bristow st., East Saugus, where Hinckley's body was found.

The second exhumation of Hinckley's body was dramatic taking place in the cold and dark of early evening, with flaring automobile headlights illuminating the grave.

The work had been delayed when State Detective Albert Brouillard resigned to the case by Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk county, and Dr. Alphone Budreski, medical examiner, were informed were unfamiliar with requirements. The Whitman board they journeyed with Dr. Thornton Landers of the Whitman health authorities to Brockton, for a conference with health agents in that city who were familiar with the necessary forms. The order to disinter the body was issued after certification that it was for the purpose of a judicial inquiry.

REVERE PAY DAY HALF-HOLIDAY

There was joy in Revere again today as the city made one of its spasmodic efforts to catch up with the municipal pay roll.

The city treasurer's office this morning began the payment of $130,000, of which $125,000 had been borrowed on tax titles, to 650 of its workers. This sum represents two months' back pay.

School teachers crowded into the queues in City Hall for their share of the money shortly after noon, a half holiday having been declared in the schools so that the teachers might collect their pay.

KIDNAP THREAT TO ELY, ALLEN

tion is that about a month ago General Needham called my house one night and solemnly informed me that he had information about a plot in which three anarchists drew lots to decide which one would blow up the governor's home in Westfield.

GUARDS AT HOME

"So far as my own home is concerned, General Needham assigned two state troopers to guard the house when I first went there to live. At General Needham's request I gave instructions to those men. One is on duty in uniform in the daytime, and a plain clothes man at night. They are still there.

"I based my instructions to them on the general situation throughout the country. Of course, I had a view to the safety of my child."

While Richard Ely was discussing the plot, General Needham issued the statement.

"This is bunk and made out of whole cloth. I never received any threats. Neither has the Governor, to my knowledge."

The public safety commissioner did not say, however, that he had not learned of plots which might involve the safety of his own and the governor's families.

SEE TERRORIST PLOT

Since the mysterious posting of extra guards at the governor's home, his Boston hotel and his State House office, as disclosed 10 days ago the state police have been secretive about the whole affair. They are inclined to believe no real danger exists but that a person or group of persons, for reasons not apparent, is determined to raise excitement of terror in households of persons of prominence.

Nevertheless every precaution to prevent a tragedy has been taken. The homes of Richard Ely and Gen. Needham, both in Newton are being guarded by state police and a special guard has been assigned to the Norwood home of former Gov. Allen.

Gen. Needham likewise has a personal bodyguard.

Although it was intimated the threats against Gen. Ely resulted from his intervention in the Lynch strike, the intimation was apparently a subterfuge. Each of the other threats was received before the strike.

GUARDS TO CONTINUE

The guard at the governor's home, his Boston hotel and at the State House continue in force and will continue, as will the guards at the home of the others, until it is definitely assured there is no danger.

A special police guard was assigned some time ago to Richard Ely's home at 73 Chestnut Hill rd., Newton following receipt of a warning that his two months old baby, Betty Louise was in danger of being kidnaped.

At about the same time, Gen. Needham learned he might be harmed and this was followed by notification that his son, Daniel, II, and daughter, Nathalie, 3, might be stolen. A guard was immediately assigned to his home at 14 Whittier rd., Newton

SEE TERROR CAMPAIGN

Next, former Gov. Allen rushed from his home in Norwood to the State House and reported to Capt Thomas Bligh of the State police that a threat to kidnap his two young children had been received. He has a son, Frank G. Allen, Jr 4½, and a daughter, Marjorie 3. He too was given police protection.

The series of terrorizing communications extended over a period of many weeks preceding the mysterious threat against the Governor's life, and there is reason to believe that similar threats have been made against other state officials or families of prominence, and have been kept secret as well.

Former Gov. Allen is away on a trip today but a person close to him corroborated the fact that his home was under guard. This spokesman said

"I am not in a position to know what prompted Gov. Allen to obtain a state police guard for his home, whether he received any direct threats or not. Some time after the McMath kidnaping on the Cape, Gov. Allen did go to Capt. Bligh and told him enough to get state troopers assigned to his Norwood home.

"I understand they were withdrawn some time later and I do not know whether Gov. Allen obtained the services of a private guard."

Police first explained that a guard of troopers had been assigned to Richard Ely's home because the governor had been staying there but they admitted the guard had been continued although the governor has not been there for weeks.

She, Who Gets Slap, Aims Suit at Mary

Los Angeles, Nov. 17 (INS)—While Mary McCormic was speeding east by airplane today, pretty Grace Williams, a writer, today prepared to file a $1,000,000 damage suit against the grand opera diva as a result of the one-slap encounter in a Los Angeles newspaper office.

Miss Williams is the biographer for Prince Serge Mdivani, who was divorced Tuesday by Miss McCormic. The two women met Wednesday night in the newspaper office, where Miss Williams was negotiating to sell the details of the McCormic-Mdivani settlement.

Their own stories of the Amazonian encounter are herewith presented by Universal Service.

By MARY McCORMIC

I had settled down in a peaceful evening at home (the McCormics are peaceful folks) when a reporter for the Los Angeles Times telephoned me and told me a woman was to appear in their office with certain information relating to the property settlement between Serge and myself.

Mary, he said, will you come over and talk to this woman?

Well, I responded "AND how."

So I went. I waited a round outside a little office where they were talking to the woman - Serges stooge. And was I hurried? Because I had seen the prince himself sitting outside the newspaper building in his second hand car and I knew he had a hand in it.

TEMPER RISES

Men be, fled about and finally, a little fellow, Mr. Hotchs, I believe his name is, or something like that, appeared with this pale and interesting young woman on his arm. I thought he was going to try to sneak her out.

So the McCormic temper leaped into action. I saw red, white and blue. I approached the woman. And then ah then my mind went blank. I don't seem to remember just what happened.

The next thing I knew, this man Hotchs and Mr. Bouquet or some thing had some of me and they were posing at me and a photographer they had planted to take a picture of our meeting.

EVEN HE'S SURPRISED

I looked up and there was the photographer with his mouth open and a flashlight in his hand.

"Hey," Mr Bouquet shouted at him, "you've forgotten to take the picture."

It was too, ate then for Mr Hotchs was escorting Serges little stooge from the building.

Well I laughed and laughed and laughed. It struck me as being terrific humor. I suppose she'll sue me but ha ha I've had my fun and it's worth it.

P S Serge's friend says she is going to write 50000 words about him. If she does I'll write 150000 and he sure me. I feel all

P P S Anybody who would file suit against me for a million certainly is an optimist. It's a great compliment. Miss Williams certainly has high aspirations I wish her luck.

By GRACE WILLIAMS

I am a writer and a world traveler. I have been educated in expensive private schools, here and abroad. I am engaged in writing a biography of Prince Serge Mdivani, a fine and cultured gentleman.

In this connection all of the prince's private papers including his property settlement with Mary McCormic have been turned over to me. Re eving details of the settlement to be of interest to the public I offered them to the Los Angeles Times calling their Wednesday evening.

For a long time I was engaged in conversation. Then I decided to call on at that moment I heard the voice of a woman in sad tones and angry shrieks using language which made me pale.

HARD BLOW STRUCK

As I left the office in which I had been conversing with several members of the newspaper staff, the woman it was Mary McCormic but I had never seen her before so I didn't quite know who it was fell upon me.

Before I could raise my hand to defend myself she had peeled off her glove and struck me a hard blow. Well I nearly fainted. I didn't say a word I looked around for help approached the woman.

I was then escorted from the place by one of the men with whom I had been talking. She is a vixen. I, the one who kept telling me how sorry he was that I had happened.

I told the editor "If he too had you have to use such methods to get your news."

NO WORDS FROM VICTIM

But I said nothing for I am a lady.

I want her to know this however she said I was not with fright but that is not true. If I was pale I was only because the language she used made me that way.

I intend to sue Miss McCormic for the insulting thing she did to me. I want to tell her that in the biography of Prince Mdivani I am writing I am drawing very kindly even flatteringly with her.

Following the banquet, at which Harold Humphrey, operating superintendent and president of the Store Members Association was toastmaster, the group adjourned to the auditorium on the third floor where entertainment followed. Glorified 'Kidding' for Aching Teeth

Pittsburgh, Nov. 17 (AP)—Dental "small talk" that constant line of chatter with which the practitioner tries to keep the patient's mind off the buzz of drills and the yank of forceps, now is glorified under the name of applied psychology.

Delegates to the annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania Odontological Society were told today by Dr. C. A. Whitmer of the University of Pittsburgh.

"A great many people go to a dentist believing they are in acute pain. They really are not—but there's no reason to tell 'em so. Just treat them as if they were in pain for a while and then, when you say, 'Now, that doesn't hurt a bit, does it?' they'll think they feel fine."

"Of course, if the patient is really in pain—well, that's where you apply psychology."

ANIMAL TALKS AT R. H. WHITE

Saturday morning at 10:30, Dr. Raymond L. Ditmar, famous director of the Bronx Zoo, New York will give the first of two lectures in the auditorium on the 3d floor of the R. H. White Co. on his exciting Animal Experiences. The second lecture will be presented at 2:30 p. m. At the conclusion of the first lecture in the morning the final cash awards, in the Rodeo Essay Contest conducted by the R. H. White Co. will be announced.

At 8:30 Saturday morning he will talk over WHDH and at 8 o'clock he will be heard over WEEI.

ROOSEVELT ON AIR TOMORROW

Executive Will Address A. M. Listeners

By N. F. T.

Everything is President Roosevelt down in Georgia tomorrow. And people of that state will be waving flags and otherwise making merry at Savannah in celebration of their 200th Anniversary of colonized existence. In the morning, both NBC and CBS networks have arranged to let the rest of America hear an hour of these gala doings between 10 and 11 o'clock, with President Roosevelt as the principal speaker. Stations WBZ and WNAC will carry the down south proceedings across our New England air lanes.

* * *

FOOTBALL FORECASTING

Another of those pre-game parties takes place behind microphones late tonight at Providence. Under auspices of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the crack Brown University band holds forth to salute the Harvard-Brown eleven encounter here tomorrow. Some 70 student musicians make up the concert group, directed by Rowland A. Crowell. All of which occupies the 11:30 to midnight period broadcast by way of WBZ.

* * *

That informal White House visit early this week when President Roosevelt and Al Smith sat down like good pals to talk things over will afford a welcome break in the light duties of Miss Grace Tully, his secretary (WNAC) this evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

LOCAL LATHER

Three years on the air hereabouts was observed impressively yesterday (WEEI) by the "Silver Lining Hour," as staged each Thursday, in the interests of the Boston Industrial Home . . . Buddy Clark, popular and very versatile young vocal favorite, has actually turned down two recent New York offers, for the reason that he feels his present series for those fur folks is developing him adequately here-about and at a figure with which he is entirely satisfied . . . Admirers of Eddie Mayehoff, the satisfied if fan mail is any thermometer of that's success . . . Joe Rines takes his music men into the Casa-cades Roof night club spot, supplanting the Lew Conrad crew as of next Monday evening . . . Rines rhythm is to be heard through the WBZ-WBZA waves regularly . . . Marie Stoddard, half of the "Gossipers" combination, with Jack Shannon, is bringing her voice pupils up for radio turns lately over WHDH channels. Gladys Carew, Hugh Perrin and Dan McDonnell are three heard to date that Marie may well feel proud to have tutored . . . Carroll and Leslie Harr—with Harold Grant—came into Boston from Newburyport as a harmony trio called "Three Blue Aces" and after some four weeks of work behind WHDH walls, find themselves being asked about more extensive efforts, meaning more money of course . . . New names continue adorning the local radio talent lineup, which fact should supply the proverbial spark of hope among eager amateurs aspiring to air opportunity.

Schnecken Is Mellow, Rich Dessert

By MARTHA LEE

IS THERE a Dutchman anywhere in your family tree? Or even a few neighborly New Yorkers? If there are then you won't need any introduction for Schnecken [illegible] we will tell you that Schnecken is a rich [illegible] pastry family.

Schnecken is a [illegible] en is homey, and comforting and glowing. It is all those things, because it's a [illegible] a food. It's almost always a permanently.

It has become so as the result of years of [illegible] sipping among good friends who love the old and substantial things, the things of contentment and quiet. Schnecken has long been a friend and partner in such gather [illegible]. You recall Grandmother in [illegible] and white lace [illegible] sewing aprons at dusk with her [illegible] chum from the sewing club. A beautiful picture.

SCHNECKEN

1 cake compressed yeast
1 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup evaporated milk and
¼ cup warm water, mixed
1 cup flour
¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
½ cup evaporated milk and
½ cup water, mixed
4 cups flour
1½ tsp. salt
Melted butter
Brown sugar
Cinnamon

Crumble yeast into a bowl. Add 1 tbsp. sugar and let stand until yeast is liquefied. Add the ¼ cup lukewarm diluted milk, and 1 cup flour. Beat until smooth. Set in a warm, moist place to rise, about 2 hours. Cream the butter and sugar as for cake. Add eggs, beat well, then add diluted milk and flour alternately. Beat in the yeast mixture. Cover and let rise in a warm, moist place 5 to 6 hours. Or cover tightly and let stand in refrigerator over night and set to rise in the morning. When doubled in bulk, roll to ½ inch thickness, spread with melted butter, sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon, roll up like jelly roll and cut into 1" inch pieces. Spread baking pan generously with melted butter, and brown sugar, place rolls in pan and bake in a hot oven (425 F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Invert pan to remove rolls as soon as they come from the oven. Yield 3 dozen rolls.

The caramel topping is very good. The roll part is rich enough to be served without butter. Evaporated milk helps throughout to obtain the texture and taste schnecken has made a tradition. Remember it a fine for Sunday breakfast too.

Dress That Is Flattering and Smart

By MARIAN MARTIN

Women who have figures to discipline will find the new styles smart and flattering. A good example is the model sketched today with soft drapery over the bust, a fitted waistline and hips held snugly by a pointed yoke. To keep arms slender, the sleeves carry fullness below the elbow and are gathered into a tight cuff. Satin, moussy crepes, and failles are excellent fabrics to use—and blackberry, red grey, plum, licorice brown and deep green are flattering shades to most everyone.

Pattern 9668 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

The winter edition of the Marian Martin pattern book shows all the new style highlights. This book will guide you to a distinctive wardrobe at little cost. Send for it today. Price of pattern book 15 cents, book and pattern together, 25 cents.

Unusual Sandwiches for the Lunch-Box

Heinz Condiments Put New Thrills in the Mid-Day Snack

By Josephine Gibson

HARD-COOKED EGG AND KETCHUP SANDWICHES. Combine 6 hard cooked, mashed eggs with enough Heinz Tomato Ketchup to moisten and one teaspoon Heinz Prepared Mustard, ½ teaspoon Heinz Worcestershire Sauce, salt, pepper and onion juice to season. Spread on thin slices of buttered bread. For the packed lunch, wrap each sandwich in waxed paper.

PEANUT BUTTER, BACON AND PICKLE SANDWICHES. Fry 4 or 5 slices bacon until crisp. Chop fine and add to ½ cup Heinz Peanut Butter and 3 tablespoons Heinz India Relish. Spread between slices of buttered bread, using in each sandwich lettuce, if available. These may be either plain or toasted.

OLIVE CLUB SANDWICHES. Toast slices of bread ¼ inch thick until an even golden brown. Butter lightly and let cool slightly. Spread with thick Heinz Mayonnaise. On half of the slices place lettuce leaves and cover with a layer of sliced Heinz Stuffed Olives, sliced. On remaining toast, arrange slices of broiled bacon. Put together and garnish with watercress.

If you could open each tin and bottle and jar and taste its contents you could be sure of the quality and flavor of every food you buy. You can't do that. But Heinz does for you the next best thing. Heinz kitchen-tests and tastes every batch of every food before it goes to your Grocer. This vigilant checking of quality and flavor we consider the most important phase of our work. It means that you can be sure of Heinz quality and flavor.

East DOES meet West!

—In Heinz Tomato Ketchup

Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet
Rudyard Kipling

Pardon, Mr. Kipling. But through the good works of Heinz globe-trotters those "twain" of yours, East and West, have met!

For back from the lush tropical gardens of India, Heinz has brought rare exotic spices, the pride of the East.

And from Western farms Heinz has brought luscious red-ripe tomatoes, tomatoes grown from seeds that Heinz specially develops, and picked from plants that Heinz rears in greenhouses.

The best of each of these two, the savory excitement of the spices, and the fresh wholesome goodness of the tomatoes, have been brought together, made one, in Heinz Tomato Ketchup. No wonder, then, that Heinz Ketchup has become the largest selling in the world.

Perhaps it enjoys world-wide success because in it Mr. Kipling's "twain" do meet.

We are in earnest about Heinz cooked Spaghetti!

When made, the spaghetti is dried on racks in airtight rooms.

The famous Heinz spices, and luscious Heinz tomatoes go into the spaghetti sauce.

We want to be absolutely sure your family will take to Heinz Cooked Spaghetti like an old favorite. So we go the limit, spare no effort, give it everything we've got.

We even make the original dry spaghetti. In a factory building specially equipped for spaghetti making we mix it, and knead it, and press it, and dry it. The flour we use is milled for us from a special hard Durum wheat.

Then we cook it. Just enough. Soft, digestible—but not soupy, not "mushy". And we season it with oh! such a delightful sauce! Luscious ripe Heinz-grown tomatoes and spices that we choose in the Orient. A sauce that does to spaghetti what Heinz Ketchup does to an omelette. And we add fine imported cheese.

To our own sixty-four years of food-making experience we add the expert knowledge of several generations of Italian spaghetti-makers. So Heinz cooked Spaghetti is as delicious as Italy's finest.

Have Heinz cooked Spaghetti for lunch, for dinner, as a happy change from meat. Have it often. It's quick to fix. (All ready to heat and serve!) And it's thrifty, too. (Practically a meal in one tin, for just a few pennies at your Grocer's!)

P. S. Josephine Gibson, the [illegible] Hostess Counselor, has written a grand book "57 Ways to Serve Heinz Cooked Spaghetti." It's free! Write to her for it, care of H. J. Heinz Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

By Oven-Baking Heinz puts good eating in each tin of BEANS

One reason why we oven-bake our beans—instead of boiling or steaming them—is this: dry oven-baking enables us to replace the original moisture in the beans with rich savory sauce. Thus you get, in Heinz Oven-Baked Beans, a tin filled with good bean nourishment with spicy, delicious sauce—and nothing else!

That is one reason why Heinz beans are oven-baked. There are others. Oven-baking makes beans easier to digest. It makes them more munchy, more mealy, more fun in the eating. And that is why our ancestors chose to oven-bake their beans, why Heinz oven-bakes them today.

Heinz buys "choice hand-picked" beans and culls out all but the perfect ones. Heinz makes each sauce rich and savory and pure. Heinz puts more good bean-eating in each big tin. And your Grocer sells them at prices reasonably low.

THAT GIRL FROM NEW YORK -:- By Allene Corliss

Eden Believes on First Day in Jerry's Home That His Mother Resents Her Being There

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lovely young Eden Lane and handsome Jerry Evan, a banker, fall in love on sight. Five years before, following a disastrous love experience, Eden had come to New York. She obtained a position with an advertising concern and that, together with the income from her mother's estate, permitted her to live comfortably. After two years in New York she met Jake Pierson, an undemonstrative sort who aroused ardor by his lack of it. He proposed to Eden, but, while she enjoyed his companionship thoroughly, she did not love him. Following Eden's rejection Jake disappeared. When next she saw him he was married, but his wife had gone to Arizona for her health. Jerry and Eden are finally married in New York and spend a four-day honeymoon at Atlantic City. Elizabeth Preston, Jerry's hometown girl friend, is stunned by the news of his marriage. In New York Jake reappears and accompanies Eden and Jerry on a party where Jerry meets Lola. Jerry and Lola disappear at the party and Jake has to take Eden home. The next day Jerry loses his job and they go back to Jerry's home town in Vermont to live with his mother.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

Jerry was uncomfortably aware that his mother had sounded rather abrupt. He told himself Eden wouldn't mind it any more than he did, once she was used to her, but just at first it made things a little difficult. He looked at her anxiously across the table and was relieved to find she looked quite sweetly unconcerned. Nevertheless, he was glad when his mother turned the conversation calmly into less personal channels; spoke of the bank.

"Henry Mason has been doddering about for the past five years," she said, her large, white fingers reaching for a bunch of purple grapes. "I've urged him finally on a pension. You'll start with his title, but you'll occupy your grandfather Jerrold's office, Jerry(and sit at his desk."

"That's a big order, mother," Jerry flung her a brief grin. "Grandfather was an old pirate," he explained to Eden, "and a perfect wizard at making money."

Julia fastened her large blue eyes on him calmly, spoke distinctly, in her even, oddly impicasble voice.

"At your age, Jerry, your grandfather was racing horses and playing poker down in Jason's hardware shop. He was past 30 before he ever added one penny to the money he inherited. Once he started," she added succinctly, "he never stopped."

"Which means, I suppose, "observed Jerry with an amused but rather embarrassed grin, "that I am expected to go and do likewise."

But if he had hoped his mother would find this amusing he was mistaken, because, obviously, she didn't. "It simply means," she informed him gravely, her fingers plucking at the purple grapes, "that I am going to expect a great deal of you—from now on."

Jerry, meeting her calm blue eyes, felt the amusement go out of his own. Told her, speaking much more seriously than his wont

"You've always given me a great break, mother. I'm glad to be home and I shall try like the devil not to disappoint you—if that's when you mean."

Julia Makes Plans to Motor Downtown

"In that case," Julia told him gravely, "I'm quite sure you won't. And now," she added, folding her napkin carefully, "if you have quite finished breakfast, shall we go downtown immediately? I usually make it a point to walk, but as we have an unusually full day ahead of us, I had William leave the car."

"Yes, of course," Jerry, feeling that things were moving more rapidly than he had anticipated looked a bit uncertainly from his mother to his wife and in that moment faced, awkwardly and uncertainly, the first of many such moments. "How about you, Eden?" His voice urged her to look up, to smile at him.

She did both. Said, with a sweet and wholly deceiving casualness, "Don't worry about me, Jerry. Run along with your mother. I'll be busy all morning unpacking."

"That's right," Jerry knew an enormous relief, "I'd forgotten about the unpacking". I suppose our trunks arrived all right, mother?"

"Yes. They came yesterday morning. William brought them up from the station and put them in your room." Julia stood up, rose for almost the first time directly to Eden. "I have given you and Jerry the front bedroom at the top of the stairs. I think you will find everything in readiness for you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Evans."

Their eyes met across the table and something vital inside of Eden shivered ironically.

"She resents my being here," she thought swiftly, instinctively, "as much as being just as hard for her as it is for me. Surely, Jerry must see it's an impossible situation—"

They were leaving the dining room, moving toward that dark, narrow hall. Jerry's hand sought her arm, closed over it strongly, a little pleadingly. He wanted to say to her—

"I hate to run off and leave you like this—" He said instead: "I'll run upstairs with you and unlock the trunks."

Julia did not watch them as they went up those thickly carpeted stairs. But she knew exactly how they looked. Eden, slim and quite lovely in her green wool dress, her silver fox fur trailing over her arm. Jerry, close beside her, his fingers seeking hers, their shoulders brushing gently. Jerry was saying, pointing to one of the heavily framed oil paintings that hung halfway up the stairs

"And that, Mrs. Evans, is one of the Jerrold aunts—a bit horrifying, wouldn't you say? Note the Jerrold nose—and think twice before you have any children—they say it appears regularly every third generation."

Clothes Ignore All Whims of Fashion

Julia set a small black hat carefully on her head, buttoned herself into her sealskin jacket. Neither the hat nor the jacket admitted to any passing fashion. Like Julia herself, they were indefectible, a law unto themselves

When Jerry came down a few minutes later, she was standing at the door, her hand already on the polished knob. She looked at him and smiled unexpectedly, sweetly. A sudden relaxing of her set mouth, a faint softening of her pale blue eyes.

"I wonder if you realize how much it means to me to have you home, Jerry?" she asked softly.

Then, without waiting for him to answer her, she opened the door and led the way to the waiting automobile.

"You know," Jerry told her, as they drove down Prospect st, "I wish Eden could have come along with us. Mightn't she have?"

"Why, of course, Jerry. It didn't occur to me that she would care to. I naturally supposed that she would want to get unpacked and rest a bit. It seemed to me that she looked very tired."

Jerry repeated this conversation to Eden in the few moments they had together alone before lunch.

"Just to show you," he explained eagerly, "that Mother was really trying to be nice. She can't help seeming to appear rather abrupt. It's her nature, I suppose—she is just naturally blunt."

"So I noticed, darling. You don't, by any chance, suppose she's taken a faint dislike to me, or anything—"

Jerry refused to meet the matter. Fingered. "Don't be absurd," he told her impatiently, "why on earth should she have?"

"She shouldn't, of course," agreed Eden pensively, "but things like that do happen, you know."

"Mother isn't that sort. She's much too intelligent to pull any of this mother-in-law stuff, if that's what you mean."

Jerry was from a modern room that had only recently become dull. A huge watercolor of a ship, a pair of ... and a portable phonograph.

He wore fringed ... evening gowns, sem dark street dresses, tall-heeled pumps and absurd satin mules were scattered impudently over chairs and the black marble mantelpiece; insolent small hats perched rakishly on the low carved bedposts; a pair of scarlet pajamas dangled grotesquely from an old-fashioned wall bracket; the silver fox fur with Jake's gardenias, definitely wilted now, cluttered the marble-topped bedside table together with a portable typewriter, a violet leather jewel case and half a dozen new novels. ... the massive old black walnut dresser looked like a stout and ... dowager who had suddenly had the contents of a debutante's week-end case dumped unceremoniously into her immaculate and outraged lap.

He spoke suddenly, making her jump a little. He said, his voice heavy with self-accusation. "It occurs to me, Eden, that as a son, I haven't been such a whale of a success. In fact, it's just beginning to sink in that I've been rather a skunk."

Jerry Recalls Only His Own Selfishness

"Good heavens, Jerry, must you call yourself names about it? It can't be as bad as that."

"Well, it is. I've been utterly and completely selfish. I've gone my own sweet way and left Mother to go here alone—"

"But are you sure, Jerry, that she hasn't wanted it that way?" ... tried, Eden told herself, ... a chiffon nightgown rather viciously into a drawer, she could say that much, even if she couldn't tell him what she very well knew, that his mother had not been trying to be nice that morning.

"I unfortunately," Jerry told her shortly, his young mouth grim "that's exactly the way I had indoped out. Well, it was a mistake. It's—pathetic, Eden, to see how glad she is to have me back. She tries her best not to show it—but you can't miss it. She's been so lonely all these years—and how much of a person to whine about it—" He turned abruptly and strode over to a window, stood staring down into a wind-swept street. When he spoke next, his voice came to her over his shoulder, a little rough with fiercely denied emotion. "I'm going to make it up to her, Eden," he said, "if it's the last decent thing I ever do.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

A Simple, Crinkled Crepe Ensemble

MISS SALLY BLANE is photographed here wearing a stylish frock of gray crinkled crepe, with epaulets of cross fox fur. Although she brought it back from Europe, she declares New York and Hollywood styles are much more to her liking.

Ensemble of Crepe

By SALLY BLANE

Here is a frock that I brought back from Europe a few weeks ago.

It is not so pretentious, but then I definitely don't like to overdress.

I think the whole secret of ... from one time I was a little girl has been toward ... simple ... of ... days we girls probably will be wearing the equivalent of Romeo tops.

The gown itself is just a gray crinkled crepe ensemble.

Those four epaulets of cross fox fool the men sometimes. They think I'm wearing a long fur ...

I really bought the gown because I liked the ... with the ... and ... I ... the ... and ... I ... the ... and ... I ...

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

SO MANY INTERESTING ENTERPRISES are being launched these days that we feel there is definitely a silver lining to the dark cloud of the depression. Never has there been a time when the so-called society woman whose main interests are thought to be an endless round of lunches, teas and bridge parties, have had their scope of thought and action widened to the extent that they have today. Not only have many of them actually gone into business, and are doing exceedingly well, but many of them are attaching some definite significance to their gatherings.

For instance, attractive Mrs. Harold Porter in a miniature but exquisitely appointed apartment at the Myles Standish Hotel every Wednesday afternoon attracts a large group of sociality prominent people to her French "Causeries." This week it was our privilege to hear Monsieur Pierre Billard speak to a group of interesting listeners on the political and economic situation in France today.

Mrs. Adolph Leeds

At the tea table was Mrs. Frank Hobbs dressed in a smart black and silver ensemble gracefully dispensing the tea in the soft exquisite glow of candlelight.

More people should use candlelight. It imparts such a romantic and picturesque glow, and the glisten of candle light on a silver tea service is something that always fills us with a glow of happiness.

Mrs. Adolph Leeds, pouring at the other end of the table wore a deep wine colored frock with little angel-wing sleeves, and a most becoming artist tam hat with matching scarf.

Mrs. Richard Dewey Mann, sipping tea and chatting fluently in French with Mrs. Anna Colamn Ladd.

Miss Jean Porter, daughter of Mrs. Harold Porter, wore a fascinating soul brown afternoon frock embroidered with white daisies.

Mrs. Elliot Bracket, Mrs. Robert Burgess, Mrs. William M. Burr also attended. Mrs. Burr fascinated us with her interesting stories of her sojourns in France. A neat fitting black afternoon frock with white lace collar and cuffs and a modish wee pointed feather trimming her dare fel hat completed Mrs. Burr's ensemble. Also looking extremely regal in the glow of the candle light was Mrs. Charles Sylvester in a brown and white semi-formal frock covered by a sumptuous mink coat. Very interesting and entertaining these informal little causeries of Mrs. Porters, and we were delighted to see such a large and interested gathering.

Wheaton Club Plans Session

Mrs. J. Edgar Park, wife of the president of Wheaton College will talk on "Mary Webb, the English Authoress, Her Life and Works," at the first seasonal meeting of the New England Wheaton Club to be held at the Y. W. C. A. on Clarendon st. at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Kathleen Emerson Swan of Methuen president of the club, will preside, introducing also Miss Dorothy Coates, alumnae secretary, and Miss Roberta Palsambe, undergraduate representative, who will speak briefly on campus topics of current interest to alumnae.

TO BE LOVELY BE LAZY AND SLEEP -:- OPEN SANDALS NECESSITATE TINTED TOES

Face Can Be Remade at Night

By Therese Deschamps

SLEEP IS one of the greatest beauty treatments. That is—sleep that is comfortable, relaxed and refreshing. With windows thrown wide to the coy little breezes and the all wool and plenty yards wide—blankets keeping you snug and warm, just let those night hours slip by in a jiffy—and behold, you are practically a new person by seven-thirty a. m.

There are people, perhaps you know some of them, who say they can't sleep before twelve or one o'clock. Poor dears. They don't know the joy of shutting out the world at nine, at the very latest. This is the time to throw the satin puff where you can reach it a little later, move the vase of flowers where the night light includes them in the scene, pile the pillows high in back of the neck and wade into that new book.

If you are going to a dance at the country club or dinner with the Whoozits, the next night, be ours and don't let the most interesting book steal your beauty sleep.

Your face has been put straight with the world, of course, faces do their reviving at night. In fact, it is the most important time for them recover from the strain and stress of the day.

Simple Routine

Cleanse, stimulate and adjust the night cream, pat the chin and massage the elbows—then you will be a success, my dear, for years. It isn't difficult to get the habit of the simple routine which keeps you fresh and lovely.

So long as we have to keep on our tip-toes in this beauty game, there will always be the two schools of thought about using or not using soap and water on the precious complexion. We do. Lots of it. However, we know some women who wouldn't think of putting soap on their faces.

We refuse to take sides, but suggest that whatever agrees with you—do until it doesn't agree any longer—then try something else until you find the perfect route to clear transparence.

Three Methods

If you are not satisfied with your present facial routine, I would be glad to send you three different methods followed by a charming actress who looks 25 and isn't—and two society women, a true blonde whose beauty is like clearest crystal and a brunette who is vivacious, delightful and always superb from the tip of her fingers to the final swirl of her proud head.

Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with your inquiry and give us a hint as to your type.

Beauty Queries

Two Chins

Question—I really can't afford any fancy contraptions for reducing my two chins to one, but if you can tell me any simple method that will not cost money, I will be most grateful. Mrs. D. F. G., Boston.

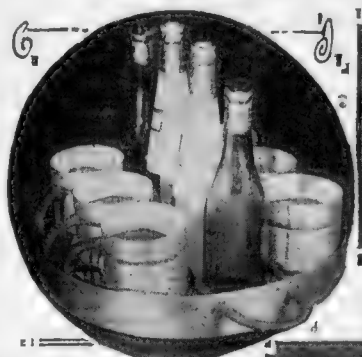
Answer—Smack your chin with the back of your hand very firmly many times until you feel the circulation mount. Do this several times a day until you discourage one of your chins and it leaves you. Firm the contours with a good astringent. This is worth the price.

Singeing the Hair

Question: What does singeing do to the hair? My hairdresser tells me all long hair should be singed every month or two. Do you recommend this?
Miss F. G. H., Brookline.

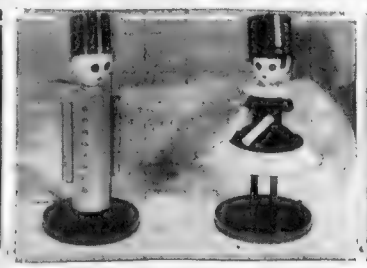
Answer: The ends of the hair sometimes become split and singeing these ends removes the dead part. We do recommend singeing the hair as often as necessary. However, excepting in extreme cases, it shouldn't be necessary to do it every month or two.

It's Smart to Give Things for the Home—Lamps for the Joyous Touch, or Clever Adjuncts to Entertaining—By Annice Brink

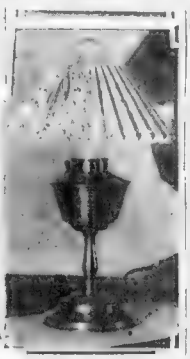


Spun aluminum is a new medium that has developed with modern design. This beer set is ultra-light and decorative. The handles are dark brown wicker.

Sea green celadon, a precious porcelain, makes the base of a lovely formal lamp, with a green shade piped in pink.



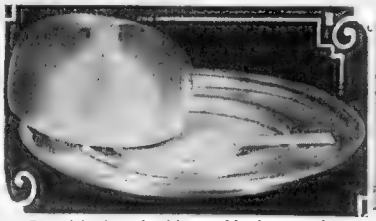
The Colonel and the Colonel's Lady are the imposing titles of these gay painted tin lamps. The faces are painted on the bulbs, and if you wish more light, take off the removable tin hats. Perfect for night lights in a child's room.



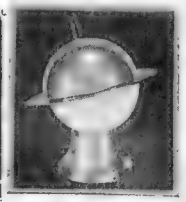
Particularly the type for an Early American interior is this lamp of English bronze with a sprigged linen shade.

Not much larger than a man's thumb, are the cups (or is that too big a word, and should we say "cuplets") of these cordial goblets. Sterling silver, and quite a buy.

Here's the best little server for canapes. It is chromium, will hold much on its three sections, and take up little room. Folded, it looks like a small box.



Entertaining is on the pick-up, and here's a spun aluminum cheese set that is sure to be a big help. A wooden plaque will hold the cheese, there's an aluminum knife with a straw covered handle to cut it, and a cover with a wooden knob to keep it fresh.



Strikingly original is a constellation lamp of chromium. Tip the shade on one side, and the little cut-out stars will let through a bit of light.

Decided Chic in White Gifts

SOMEONE JUST said, "This may not be a blameless world but its household fittings grow more and more as pure as the driven snow—in hue." Well, not quite, but white of all sorts, pure or not, is certainly the chic thing to pick up for those early Christmas gifts that one is getting these days.

In homes the walls, rugs, draperies, and furniture are turning white. Knick-knacks, lamps, pottery and such things are naturally following suit, and every gift shop that one goes into is showing the trend.

In one we found a most exquisite white leather desk set decorated in gold. Utterly lovely! It's not expensive and it is washable. (So practical)

If you'd like to know where any of the things shown on this page may be purchased, please write us, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Set in a circle of chromium is a swinging lamp with a white parchment paper shade. You'll like it for a desk, a hall or end table. It puts the goose-neck emerald light to shame.

Hints for the Household

For leaky vase or bric-a-brac, take melted paraffin and pour it into the vase and let it harden over the spot where the leak occurs. It will not leak again.

Sew snaps on all stockings and socks before laundering.

To mend a tear in a wool or silk garment, use hair instead of thread.

Keep them in pairs for washing and mending.

Amethyst, Ruby and Coral Colors

By Victoria Gaines

"ETERNAL" colors cannot be chosen for themselves alone—they must be considered as part of the complete cosmetic ensemble. No women buys her rouge nowadays without relation to her lipstick—and neither does she dream of having a nail polish that clashes with her rouge. Really smart women—those that have that just out of a handbook look that's the result of being less perfectly groomed a scene always have a color scheme for their three—their faces, lips and now their feet. A dashing brunette who wears burnt red fingernails will get her toes in match—and will probably finish off with a cherry red lipstick. Or a pale blonde will complement her rosy fingertips and toes with a soft coral lip rouge.

Triple Cosmetic

As it is most women have different lipsticks for daytime and evening, just so should they have nail polish to match. Brilliant hued fingers flying about typewriter keys are as definitely bad taste as a garish evening lipstick in the light of day. Toes, thank heaven, can stay the same color all the time, since they're covered up during the day.

And let me say right here, that this fad for making up the feet is no smart stunt of a few headline-hunters. What with sophisticated stockings and open-toe sandals for [illegible] properly groomed feet are a mark of a [illegible] as well as of a hands.

One Exception

All of this advice about the triple cosmetic ensemble has one exception—and that's when the fingernail colors are chosen, not to match the face, but to accent the costume of jewels. One lovely blonde, who was wearing amethysts for example, had her fingers and toes tinted violet to match, and completed it with a soft violet eye-shadow. And at the Horse Show, the other night, a strikingly smart creature wore a blue velvet wrap lined in bright red—and dyed red fingernails set off by a huge sapphire ring.

GOOD MANNERS

Notes of Sympathy

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

When sending a few words of sympathy to a family where the wife and mother has passed away should one send the father and daughter each a separate word of sympathy, or should one address the envelope like this

MR. JOHN DOE
MISS ALICE DOE
MISS RUTH DOE

I have never met the daughters.

E

The note of sympathy should be addressed to the father, who is the chief mourner, and in it we would send too our sympathy to the daughters.

PANDORA TELLS YOU

DEAR PANDORA:

I would like to take you across my checked apron. Why? Because of the terrible advice you gave to "Trapped."

This young lady is dealing with a dangerous type of young man, and she must watch her step. How do I know? I had one, with the same qualities and the same determination, who dogged my steps for four years, until I got so thoroughly sick of him I yawned, nagged, hinted and even at times screamed—all to no avail. Then I conceived the bright idea of making my friendship terribly expensive, so he would give me up as a gold digger. Well, I demanded to be dined and showed. And dine and show me he did—until we were both dizzy. I expected most any day to see him go to the poorhouse, but one fine morning he landed in jail—for forgery. Well, this was something more than I had bargained for, and, while he had my deepest sympathy, still he didn't have my admiration. After two years of confinement, one would think he would be cured. But no, Pandora, I have learned through sad experience that men love most that for which they pay most dearly, and now he will never forget me, and, although we are 1000 miles apart, I am told he is going to follow me.

The only suggestion I have to offer to this unfortunate young lady is to marry a stranger who will take her to China to live; otherwise, she'll never get rid of this pest. No, Pandora, your advice won't work. If it doesn't end in actual tragedy, it will only make the young man value the things you [illegible] are cheaper [illegible] the [illegible] man [illegible] tips. The [illegible] type are a pain in the neck.

TRAPPED INDEED

How you trifle with the truth! Calling yourself a name of a name like that when Indubitably (like that one?) you must be the modern reincarnation of Ninon de L'Enclos with all her fatal lure. Oh, to be so devastating they'd go through jail sentences and bankruptcy for you and still have them cry for you like babies do for castor oil (well, don't you believe all you read in the ads?). Me, I've got to coddle 'em and cook for 'em and flatter 'em silly and then be nonchalant if a blonde and zylph like magnet draws them her way. You're absolutely right Glamour-Gal, IF TRAPPED measures up to your enviable specifications. Otherwise, she wasn't so ill-advised, if I know my men.

PANDORA.

Daily Suggestion for Self-Improvement

We have been asked if "propaganda" is singular or plural. It is singular. The plural takes a "s" quite naturally, as—"propagandas." "Broadcast" is another little word which is causing some trouble. The past tense avoids "ed" at all times. One says, "I broadcast this speech a week ago."

"Um-m-m... iss goot. Iss better as any I ever taste."

NEW TEW PLAN DESIGNED TO AID WORKERS

Full Pay Envelope Will Accompany Plant Layoffs

By FRANK H MELOON
Financial Editor, Boston American

President James Dinsmore Tew, who was graduated from Harvard in 1905 to rise to leadership in the B. F. Goodrich Co., has devised an "anti-layoff" plan to aid workers. The plan arranges for emergency vacations during winter to avoid layoffs usually incidental to the season. Workers with 5 years of continuous service will be given a week's vacation with pay. About 37 per cent of the Tew company will be benefited.

Last big venture of the late Thomas A Edison was perfection of production of synthetic rubber. In the course of his experiments he secured samples of hundreds of possibly-useful shrubs from the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, world's largest collection of its kind.

Goldenrod, the hay fever weed was Edison's final choice. This is interesting in view of announcement that Russia, which we appear about to "recognize" is producing synthetic rubber at rate of approximately 100 tons monthly. The rubber is produced through an ethyl alcohol process—it is understood. The U. S. S. R. maintains three factories in production.

Average tax rate for the cities and towns of New Hampshire for 1933 dropped 5 cents a thousand this year, 1933, in spite of a drop of approximately $41,000,000 in assessed valuation, report of the state tax commission shows. The rate showed a decrease for the second successive year following the years of almost continuous advances. The decrease in the 1933 rate was largely attributed by the commission to the action of communities in cutting expenditures.

Big Traders Now Work in Smaller Way for Profit

The big trader of today would have been called a "piker" back in '29. Today, big traders are the new normal—or so it appears on a cross-section basis of the Wall St. crowd. Silver Is Closely Watched

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

However, it is followed with profound interest by the friends of silver who for [illegible] has been dedicated a great plan to the monetary policy [illegible] the alleged crime of 1873.

This has taken the form of purchase of government bonds by the Federal Reserve Banks lowering of interest rates, [illegible] loans by the R. F. No intimation has come from the White House that the President will use this power, even though the [illegible] has been [illegible] to him.

The hope of the friends of silver rest upon the two general considerations. New York, Nov. 17—Price changes for leaders ran mixed in late transactions on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The main body of stocks held their ground fairly well in the face of heavy selling in metals and some of the alcohols. The main body of shares narrowly backed and filled.

U. S. Smelting, National Distillers and McIntyre Porcupine at the same time lost 2 to about 6 points.

It was predicted in Wall Street that there might be no official announcement of the "clamping down" on capital exports.

Financial circles felt that it would be practically impossible to plug up all means of getting money out of the country. Persons with funds here, it was pointed out, might buy commodities, export them, and leave the proceeds to the sale abroad on deposit with foreign banks. However, it was believed that the recent outflow could be very substantially reduced.

Bond prices were mixed but gained a point or better ruled. Metals were with Mc... Intyre Porcupine dropping over ... points and U. S. Smelting ... points.

Fathers are soon forgotten. They are the gray ghosts that haunt the background in the college football scene, perched on the stadium ridgepoles and uttering thin ribbons of sound that are lost in the great voice of the crowd. Fathers are those shadowy folk who fidget in the outer fringe of the college show, patient provisioners, sombre heroes who sniff the smoke of battle from afar and warm their old bones from the reflected glory of their athletic sons.

So this is a father's story. Of Robert B. Chapin, Sr., old Harvard scrubber of '05 who is now carrying the ball in the butter and egg business for the glory of dear old Faneuil Hall, and of Dr. Edwin A. Locke, ancient tackle on Brown's 1896 varsity, who is holding the line against human distempers. No hysterical cheering sections, or massed bands roar applause when pere Chapin crashes through some purchasing agent's defense for a hundred crates of the strictly fresh. No salvos rise when Dr. Locke snips a pair of infected tonsils or sets a green stick fracture.

But tomorrow the two will be squatting on the cold slopes of Harvard's stadium, like old and spavined battle nags, watching their sons on the field below, with cross currents tugging at their sympathies. For where Chapin, Sr., the Harvard scrubber, is following the play of son Bob, the Brown end, Dr. Locke, the ancient Brown tackle, will be observing son Fergie, Harvard's No. 2 back. Where now, gray Eddie and grizzled Bob, are your oldtime pledges of undying loyalty to those ivy shawled academies? Remember how, with heads uncovered and an inward tear, you bellowed "Fair Harvard" and "Brunonia"? And now . . .

A Pair of Leaves From Football's Old Album

Thirty-seven years ago, you, grave Eddie with your mellow gentle manner, were a raw-boned, hell for-leather hucko with a mop of black hair. And you, serious Bob with your crisp, solemn way, were a shin-waisted, block-shouldered feather with a smooth cheek and a plow-share jaw. Are there any whiffs of lavender and rosemary now, as you rummage through the musty garrets of memory, perhaps while you tell your patients to say "Ahhh," holding down their tongues with a willow stick, or while you check through your cold storage invoices?

Well, blood is thicker than old varsity sentiments, and when Fergie shatters the Brown tackle, where you once stood, Eddie, you will chirp a cheerful holler and maybe dent your neighbor's derby.

And you Bob will swivel your brittle frame, leaning sympathetically as son Bob splits the Harvard interference and lays the ball carrier by his feels. Can you, gallant veterans, reassmmon the past and in fancy, station your lost youth across the line from those two husky cubs?

The game has changed eh, since you wore your haypads, ear bandages, and cane shinguards? They don't lean against each other now, in loose-leaf, slanting attitudes and pull and tug until the mass falls over by the sheer topsiness of its weight. They are armored now with helmets hard as stovelids, and shoulder and knee caps stiff as anvils. Your old injuries were mostly legs and arms and maybe a dented diaphragm. But they carried their heads too high for harm, and the concussions and neck snarls of our day were rare.

Remember that 1896 schedule, Doctor? And what a schedule! Here it is: Brown 20, Worcester Tech 0; Yale 18, Brown 0; Brown 44, Amherst 0; Harvard 12, Brown 0; Brown 16, Lehigh 0; Penn 16, Brown 0; Brown 10, Dartmouth 10; Brown 18, Yale 6; Brown 20, M. I. T. 0; Army 8, Brown 6; Brown 10, Williams 0; Brown 24, Carlysle 12, And in those days the halves were 35 minutes each, instead of 15 miute quarters. And Dr. Locke played every minute of 12 games, more ferrous than the later Brown team (1926) that became the "Iron Men."

And you, father Bob, when you guarded for the Harvard scrubs, they didn't run those guards into the interference, eh? The line drove straight ahead. There were no roving centers because the centers then were too big and too well larded to rove or do much else than flip the ball and fill up a smuch space between the guards as possible. It was not asking much and socially the centers were inferior players who ranked eleventh on the team and ate at the training table below the salt. They send "sir" to the backfield men and doffed their headguards when speaking to the ends. But now the center is the team's brain trust, a mathematical wizard who can do logarithms in his hat, with the blended qualities of a hawk, brood and bull buffalo.

No triple wingbacks then, and a confusing shuttle behind the line with maybe a guard wanging out to snatch the ball and lateral pass it to a wide running back, as Brown did in 1932 to score a victory over Yale. You didn't have to guard against an end fishhooking down the field for a forward like son Bob may do tomorrow, while son Fergie scurries after him with arms waving like the spread feathers of a flustered hen. There were no forward passes then.

Well, the boys of today, like those of yesterday, still give off steam and cinders from the fury of their ambitions, and the game has grown no older in that respect. Perhaps in your turn, son Bob and son Fergie, you will be sitting in the same cold slopes of the Harvard Stadium, like gray ghosts perched on the ridgepole of college football and uttering thin ribbons of sound that will be lost in the great voice of the crowd. You, too, may come to know that fathers are soon forgotten.

Marty Levy, just 525 pounds of skin and bones, makes his wrestling debut at the Garden tonight. He's an active lad for his tonnage. For comparison, Man Mountain Dean, the biggest burly until Marty came along, weighs 200 pounds less than the Quincy roly-poly.

REDS, PIRATES IN BIG DEAL

Geneva, N.Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Larry McPhail, [illegible] expected to be named president of the downtrodden Cincinnati Reds of the National League today announced he acquired, through a trade, of Tony Piet, veteran baseman, and Adam Comorosky, outfielder.

In exchange for these two Pirates the Reds sent to Pittsburgh the veteran pitcher, Charles F. "Red" Lucas and Walter Roettger, outfielder.

MacPhail declined to say if any cash was involved.

The trade, one of the most important the 1933 season has turned out, came on the first day of the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Secretary Kenesaw M. Landis of the Chicago club, a controlling [illegible] offer [illegible] for Lucas, [illegible] far above the record heretofore paid for a player.

MacPhail said he thought he got a bargain in Piet and Comorosky, the speed and youth he desired.

Piet who came up to the Pirates as a youthful star from Wichita of the Western League is only 23 years old. He was second in number of bases stolen in the league in 1932 pilfering 19. Last year he batted .321.

In 1931, when he played regularly, Comorosky batted .313. He is 28.

Lucas, 33, is a dependable right handed pitcher. He won 11 games last year with a last place club. Boettger, expected to be used as a pinch hitter, formerly was a St. Louis Cardinal.

Phillies Buy Ruble From Minneapolis

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Phillies of the National League today announced the purchase on trial of Outfielder W. Arthur Ruble from Minneapolis, American Association club.

If he is retained after next May 1, cash or players will be sent to Minneapolis.

Ruble, who is 29, led the Association in batting in 1932 with .376 and turned in an average of .360 this season.

Gilmore, Lane Will Aid Cubs in Can-Am Race

One of the smartest departures from the [illegible] was the appointment of Joe Gilmore and Myles Lane, manager-coach and captain, respectively, of the Lynn [illegible].

The Cubs' situation has had Manager Art Ross of the Bruins [illegible] for months. From the start, Ross planned to put the Cubs in the hands of some local hockey authority. His first choice was Myles Lane, but conditions arose which made such a move impractical. Then, he conferred with "Sonny" Eden and Clark Hodder, but as neither the former Boston College coach nor the Harvard freshman mentor were sufficiently versed on Can-Am hockey and were foreign to the Cub players and their ways, Ross finally decided that Joe Gilmore was best qualified for the berth.

For three years Gilmore has trained the Bruin Cubs. He is not the type to push himself forward and, therefore, it was not until he was taken to Quebec to assist Win Green in the Bruin [illegible] that people [illegible] evidence to give Joe [illegible] credit for [illegible] up.

"Tuss" McLaughry, whose Brown teams have enjoyed splendid success against what used to be called the "Big Three," will lead his 1933 edition against Harvard at the Stadium tomorrow, in what should be one of the fiercest football battles of the week.

Since McLaughry took over the coaching berth at Brown he has met and discovered a team of iron-men. Brown has beaten Harvard twice out of three times; has whipped Princeton three out of four; and split even with Yale in four college tries.

NO INDIVIDUAL STARS

Brown does not boast a solitary outstanding star this season, but the team is a fighting unit with one of the most glittering offenses ever devised; in wit, the triple wingback. From that spread-eagle formation, the Men of McLaughry can strike anywhere with startling suddenness

Half-spinners, spinners, old-fashioned criss-crosses, triple passes and all sorts of hokum take place behind the line of scrimmage, and when the enemy is spaced wide to head off the intricate play a good old plunge through the heart of the line tightens them up again.

The Brown line averages less than 180 pounds from end to end. The Brown backfield averages less than 170 pounds. They looked like a high school squad when they first reported to McLaughry, and the usually optimistic "Tuss" declared as how it was the weakest Brown squad he had ever had.

The Brown record seemed to bear out his gloomy predictions until a week ago, for Yale, Holy Cross, and Princeton had kicked them in the face. But the boys from Providence upped and let Syracuse have a scul-stirring wallop on the chin last Saturday, and they will be a difficult proposition for any club at the present writing.

They say that Maury Calto, the right end, is one of the finest wingmen in the country, despite the fact that he weighs only 153 pounds. On the defense, he has knocked off three interference in one swipe, leaving the ball carrier to the tender mercies of the secondary defense, and he is a spark-plug on the offense.

Chapin, the other end, started his first varsity game last Saturday against Syracuse, and played the full quota of 60 minutes. The substitute ends are Dave Dunmerfield and Bill Towle, brother of the end coach

EX-LINEMAN ACE

Capt. Joe Buonanno is not in the starting line-up, but you may safely wager that he will be in there.

The game, from behind this type writer, seems to be a toss-up. Harvard is weakened by the absence of Fenny Lane, the finest back I has had since the days of George Owen, Jr., but the Crimson will have a marked advantage in weight and power. The experts, I may add, are in their usual fuddled state of mind, not excepting Col Egan.

Fuller Set to Grab Ross Title Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 17—Barney Ross risks his junior welterweight championship tonight in a 10-round bout against Sammy Fuller, rugged puncher from Boston, at the Stadium, in the first major boxing program of the Chicago season

It will be the young Jewish star's first appearance before a home crowd since he belted Tony Canzoneri out from under the titles in the same building last June. His more expensive championship, the lightweight title, will not be directly involved.

Passing the Puck

By BILL [illegible]

Dissatisfied with the present calibre of Bruin and Cub hockey Manager Art Ross worked both of his squads this morning at the Garden. The Bruins will depart for Montreal tonight for their first regular meeting with Les Canadiens and the Cubs open tomorrow evening with the Quebec Beavers at the Garden.

After yesterday's Bruin and Cub workouts, Manager Art Ross spent the remainder of the day straightening out that Cub manager tangle. He was so anxious to have the young Bruins in capable hands that he devoted much thought to the selection of Cy Gilmore, which was a popular one.

Statements to the contrary notwithstanding, there is nothing so intricate about managing a hockey team that Joe Gilmore cannot handle Gilmore has played, coached and managed baseball teams, and he has had enough experience with hockey as a trainer to make the grade.

The Chicago Blackhawks are counting on Lionel Conacher to carry them through to the Stanley Cup. If Conny plays the article of hockey he did for the Maroons last season, the Hawks will be a serious threat, but unfortunately they are in the tough group, for the Rangers, Detroit and Bruins are favored to make the play-off grade, in the American division.

Myles Lane should be an ideal captain. He has been in athletics for years, playing football, hockey and baseball. He has been in professional hockey for four years, under Lester Patrick and Art Ross. He knows the Con-Am League well, is popular with the players, at least those who played with his last season.

Apparently George Boucher has injected a desire to win into his Ottawa Senators but the test will come when they take to the road

Jerry LaFlamme, ex-N. H. L. official and former manager of the Montreal Maroons, has been appointed hockey coach at St. Michael's College, his alma mater, in Toronto. Some of the best amateurs in the Queen City are enrolled at St. Mike's including "Pep" Kelley, Newmarkets, city champions, Art Jackson and Art Hamilton, Marlboros and Johnny Acheson, Toronto Canoe Club.

St. Mike's would be a fine attraction here with Boston College, Harvard or any of the club teams

In his thumbnail sketches of the N. H. L. magnates, written for the Toronto Maple Leaf Sports, "Doc" O'Meara, Montreal Star, refers to Bill Dwyer, owner of the Americs, as "a man who believes that old hockey players should be looked after by the game." How about old managers? Eddie Powers was let out by Dwyer after he had turned down the St. Mike's berth and wound up an extensive scouting trip for the Americans.

Unless his luck shifts immediately, Fred Hitchman is headed for another tough season He received a charlie horse in a collision with Jimmy Ward of the Maroons and yesterday crashed into the goal upright and injured his back.

Upon learning that in the future, anytime that he popped off at referees it would cost him $100, Connie Smythe protested to Frank Patrick that frequently his jaws work officials were not worth more than $50, but to no avail. It's a flat rate $100, as is.

Between the first and second periods of the Ranger-Red Wings game last night, Pres. Frank Calder presented the Stanley Cup to the New York aggregation and it was noticeable that the Detroiters scrutinized the trophy very carefully.

S. Mantha Breaks Nose in Practice

Montreal, Nov. 17 (AP)—Sylvio Mantha, husky defenseman of Montreal Canadiens, was nursing a broken nose today after colliding with Aurel Joliat at practice. Despite his injury he was expected to start in Saturday's National Hockey League game with Boston Bruins here.

Rangers Beat Red Wings, 2 to 1

New York, Nov. 17—The blueshirted New York Rangers, winners of the Stanley Cup last year, opened their home season at Madison Square Garden here, with a 2 to 1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings. It was the first win in three starts for the Rangers.

HUSKIES CALL TRACK SQUAD

Northeastern's first call for track practice is being sent out by Coach Ed Parsons for early next week.

Among the newcomers are Dick Ellis, Huntington School middle distance star, Francis Tuscher former State high school quarter-mile champion from Newton High, and Allan Hakanson, who teamed with Ellis and Don MacLeod on the freshman team

'GO, GET 'EM,' OBERLANDER'S VALEDICTORY

Middletown, Ct., Nov. 17 (AP)—Greater alumni activity in encouraging secondary school players with football ability to attend Wesleyan was recommended today by Coach Jim Oberlander, former Dartmouth star, on the eve of his retirement as head football coach at the University.

Oberlander, who will give up football for medicine, said his suggestion was not intended as criticism, but was made in response to inquiries from alumni groups as to how the Cardinals might improve their football standing.

The former forward passing specialist and three-quarters of Wesleyan's first string men are developed on the Wesleyan gridiron and termed the percentage as much higher than that of some of the colleges appearing regularly on the Cardinals' schedule

Oberlander asserted that while there is no place at Wesleyan for the subsidized athlete, there is a distinct difference between subsidy and lively alumni interest and activity.

The Wesleyan mentor will relinquish his post tomorrow after the game with Rochester. He has completed his medical studies at Y. U. and plans to leave Middletown next month to become an intern at Cleveland, O., hospital.

Although in line for at least a tie in the "Little Three" series, Wesleyan has won only two of its seven games this season. It was defeated thrice and tied twice.

Graham Lost to Cards for Season

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—Alfred (Pup) Graham, a member of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football League, probably will play no more.

Graham was forced to leave the club because of an intestinal ailment, and Coach Paul Schissler was informed he not likely to become strong enough to resume competition. Graham, from Ohio State, formerly played with Portsmouth and the Providence Steamrollers He is 27.

Uncorred upon in six home [illegible] ability to keep its record unsullied Boston College has its back to the wall as it looks with fear and trepidation on the virile horde of Green Terrors from western Maryland who arrived in our midst this morning prepared to joust in interfectional combat at University [illegible]

Headed by Coaches Dic Harlow and Neal "Skip" Stahley the 23 rulking players who sailed into Boston on the New York boat present a formidable front. They are rated even money against the Eagles.

Backed by a long string of impressive victories, which found them losing their only major game to Duquesne, the Terrors are primed to ride their season successfully with a victory over Boston College, which would be the first in the three-year series.

BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Harlow, who coached at Penn State for 12 years, followed by five more at Colgate, is now in his eighth season at Western Maryland.

"This present Western Maryland team is one of the finest I ever coached, he states in his room at the Parker House today.

"The squad is in excellent condition. We have capable reserves, are stronger both in the line and backfield than the outfit which held Boston College to a 20-20 tie last year, and have pointed to tomorrows game, for a victory will mean the culmination of a highly successful year."

McNALLY AT QUARTER

Sheperd can do about anything well. He is one of the hardest men to bring down in the East, and his backing up of the line has been superb.

Sadauskey is, according to Harlow, one of the best tackles he has ever seen. Last year he was hurt previous to the Boston game and wasn't used until late in the third period when Pete Chesnulevich was running wild. With, his advent the game took a sudden and unexpected turn, and the Terrors wound up with their surprising tie.

John McNally is to be at quarterback. He was unable to play in 1932 due to an injury, but he is both good offensively and defensively. It was he who scored six touchdowns against Loyola last Saturday.

Pete Mergo and Bruce Ferguson complete the backfield. Mergo is a fine blocking back and does the punting while Ferguson specializes on defending against passes Shephard, among his many other able talents, will do some of the punting tomorrow. This will come as a distinct surprise to the Eagles. Jimmy Dunn, who had such a good day against the Eagles in nursing an injury but will be back into the game at some stage

WORKOUT AT N. U.

Joe Lipsky 168, at center; Webster Lucas, 188, at right tackle; Mike Campofreda, 195, at left guard, and Randolph Shiling, at right end, are newcomers to the Maryland line. The ends, Johnny Blissman, 155, and Shilling are small, but fast and scrappy, while the tackles will be well taken care of by Sadauskey, 192, and Lucas George Jones, 168, will be at the running guard.

McKenney put in a final drill this afternoon. The only change in his lineup from that which started against Villanova finds Joe Orloski, 175 pound Abington senior, at right halfback instead of Bobby Ott, a purely defensive measure calculated best to offset the threatened passing attack.

Maryland, My Maryland!

DUNN FERGUSON LUCAS MERGO SHILLING CAMPOFREDA

LIPSKY SHEPHERD STALEY SADAUSKEY JONES McNALLY HARLOW BLISSMAN

The Green Terrors of Western Maryland arrived via boat in Boston this morning. They each whiffed the Arctic blasts, then raced for the Parker House, where they are shown lolling around trying to get warm. "Home, Warm Home," was their theme song. All stated they hoped it would be warmer when they faced Boston College at the Heights tomorrow. The Western Maryland eleven is powerful. And may upset the able Eagles. If they are not frozen before the contest starts.

36TH BOWDOIN TUFTS TILT

Rivals of long standing, Bowdoin and Tufts clash for the 36th time at Tufts Oval at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Jumbos, boasting a record of five victories and only one defeat all year are rated a heavy favorite to annex their 23d win in the series which dates back to Oct 28, 1858, when under the old system of scoring, Tufts took the verdict 5-4.

Although Tufts has by far the better record to date the history of the games shows that most of the previous battle have been won by a very small margin usually by more than one touchdown.

The worst beating that Tufts ever handed the Polar Bears was back in 1914 when the Jumbos won 60-7. Bowdoin, in turn, emerged with a 20-0 win in 1921, its biggest margin of victory.

Last year a heavily favored Tufts team was held to a scoreless tie in what was termed an upset.

Bowdoin, which arrives at Dartmont Spring Country Club today will enjoy its last pre-game workout this afternoon. In fact, Coach Belmont session today will be the last practice drill of the year for the Polar Bears close their season with the Jumbos.

Bowdoin has one of its heaviest teams of recent years. According to Coach Charlie Bowser, every one of its 33 players who are to trot out at the oval tomorrow is in good shape, and despite the odds against them, confident of victory.

The tackles are particularly heavy, Low at left tackle scaling 189 and McKenney at the opposite post going 202 pounds.

The backfield of Putnam, quarterback, Capt. Hubbard and Burdell, halfbacks, and Baravelle, fullback, is only of average weight but Baravelle carries 200 pounds of beef and brawn on his wide-set shoulders and can be depended upon to hit the line for the necessary yardage when the going is toughest.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Give Vince Dundee, world's middleweight champion, a great big hand. He smashed ring precedent when he signed, through Max Waxman, his manager, to meet Andy Callahan of Lawrence in a 15-round bout at the Boston Garden on December 8. This title battle will be staged for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

Dundee only recently won the world's championship by defeating Lou Brouillard at the Garden. Under the rules of the various boxing commissions he could not be compelled to defend his title until after a period of [illegible] months from the date he won it.

Instead he signed [illegible] to meet Callahan [illegible] a testimonial [illegible] Mr. Boston

One of the troubles with the boxing game has been [illegible] champions [illegible] adopted safety first [illegible] Once they have reached the top they have refused to risk their precarious [illegible] have been particularly careful in avoiding [illegible] opposition.

Not so with Dundee. He will be defending his title within two months from the time he won it. He will be in there trading blows with a boxer who, like himself, has stood from hard and who ranks as one of the world's greatest middleweights.

Dundee will get 37 per cent of the receipts, Callahan 12 per cent. Waxman is entitled to the [illegible] share of the spoils as he is the champion. Callahan is battling for a world's title and will be satisfied if he gets enough money to cover his training expenses.

Select Training Camps

MAX WAXMAN, manager of Dundee, came to Boston and closed the match with Matchmaker Billy Ames of the Garden. After the contract was signed he hurried back to Newark, N. J., to map out Dundee's training program.

Callahan has been doing light work at Jerry Buckley's Gym on Friend st. He will now sweep into action in more intensive training.

Down through the years the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund has staged many brilliant ring shows. There was Jack Sharkey against Jim Maloney, Andy Callahan against Lou Brouillard, Johnny Wilson against Pat McCarthy and many other standout attractions which set marks for intensive fighting and also high attendance figures. The Dundee-Callahan bout is the first world's championship match the Christmas Fund has ever arranged. And everybody connected with the Christmas Basket Fund is quite proud of this brilliant offering.

Best Offense, Defense Seen in Sunday Tilt

By JOE CASHMAN

What happens when an irresistible force bumps against an immovable object?

If there is an answer, Sunday's meeting of the Redskins and Green Bay Packers at Fenway Park, should furnish it.

The Redskins will be making their final local appearance of the season, have the most powerful offense in the pro circuit. Coach Lone Star Dietz' strong, shifty backs, led by the great Cliff Battles, have run away with all ground-gaining honors. No defense in the league has been able to stop them.

The Packers, on the other hand, rule the defensive roost, with their nearest rival miles behind. Only once this season have as many as two touchdowns been scored against them and they have allowed but seven touchdowns in nine games. They yield opponents fewer yards a month than some eleven permit in a single contest.

The answer to the Packers' ability to stop other fellows' line, of course, in the line.

There are 15 forwards on the squad and the lightest of these tips the beam at 202 pounds. Cal Hubbard, All-American tackle who wrecked Harvard while at Geneva and did the same for Boston College in the interests dear old Centenary, carries around 265 pounds with the agility of a lightweight. Al Sarafiny, a center from Iron River, Wis., and a newcomer to the team, is listed at 235 pounds. The average weight is 215 pounds.

Coach Dietz has said all about the Packers' defensive strength, yet strangely enough, it is the visitors' offense, built around the uncanny passing of Arnold Herber, that is worrying the Redskins' mentor as he applies the final touches for Sunday's battle.

WHICH IS THE BETTER CIGAR?

The one was made to give smokers the best 10c value in America—and it did. For years it was the largest-selling 10c brand.

The other is identically the same Bayuk "Phillies"—in tobacco—in size—in shape. Its only difference is in the price. Formerly 10c—today 5c.

This explains why more men are smoking Bayuk "Phillies" today than any other cigar. They know they're getting a proven 10c value at just half the former price.

Experienced smokers tell us—and tell their dealers—that they get more real enjoyment and satisfaction from Bayuk "Phillies" than any cigar they've ever smoked—regardless of price.

We do know this—that never in history has one cigar so completely met the taste demands of discriminating smokers as the Bayuk "Phillies" you buy today.

When you try Bayuk "Phillies"—don't compare it to other cigars selling for 5c. Compare it to the most enjoyable cigar you've ever smoked—regardless of price.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

Giant Joe Yablonsky of Holden, 190-pound fullback, is doubly checked by a pair of Eaglet linemen after a gain of nine yards in the third period.

TALENTED PAIR IN 'CHRISTOPHER BEAN' FILM

Stage Comic Paces Faster on Screen

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Movies come and movies go, but there is a merry "Christopher Bean" only once in the blue cinema moon we talk about but seldom see. This translation into lights and shadows, of the Pauline Lord stage success, recently here, may be viewed with extremely hilarious result currently at Loew's State. It blazes a breezy trail for all other talkies to follow when fashioned out of footlight fare.

For once a film comedy is brighter than its stage forbear. This is because the moguls at Hollywood chose wisely and well. Sam Wood, who has a decided flair for comedy, they made director, and to Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore they gave the outstanding roles. So in that earlier half, where the original was slow, there is a tremendous get-up-and-get of camera action; and once the tempo is set, it is carried through to the finish with commendable ability.

New England Locale

This is the story of the Haggetts of New England, family of a small town doctor, whose chief assets are bills long overdue in payment by patients. The maid of all work has been with them these past 19 years and owes Long ago they befriended a painter in oils

Unknown to the Haggetts time brings this poor artist fame after death. Arrives a collector from New York, in hot pursuit of masterpieces. So little had the Haggetts esteemed the genius in their midst, that they used his canvases to stop hen house leaks, or laid them on the trash heap to be burned.

Out of all this is woven a well comedy—the family developing covetousness, no end, with the maid turning out to be the artist's widow and owner of all his pieces

Marie Is Wondrous

As the domestic, Miss Dressler delivers one of her very finest characterizations. She is comic, she stirs a feeling of pathos, as only Marie can. She makes you forgive Sam Wood for slapsticking the stage play to an extent; her adventures in the flivver are reminiscent of a stellar "short" of the time when Charlie Chaplin was a flivver.

Likewise, Mr. Barrymore achieves a grand character as the physician, motionlessly fond demon of greed. Together, he and Marie make the whole film a rare histrionicity.

All the minor roles are in good hands, the bright dialogue is expertly voiced and the situations exquisitely manipulated, mostly for mirth's sake. So "Christopher Bean" becomes one of the neatest of all the talkie comedies.

Father Time Takes a Deep Bow Before Art

Leslie Howard and Heather Angel, in "Berkeley Square," splendid stage play turned into film, and to be featured on the RKO-E. F. Keith screen, tomorrow. Howard was the creator of the role he enacts in the photoplay. The romance spans centuries of time, and the effects achieved are of outstanding merit.

Universal Purchases Military Story for Ex-Bostonian, Now Returning From Europe

Los Angeles, Nov. 17—Plenty of color, romance and good old honest adventure in any life story of Lord Kitchener, who figured so prominently in the World War. All of the dramatic highlights in Kitchener's career are related in "The Front Door Step," a novel by Geoffrey Watkins, which Universal has purchased.

The role of Lord Kitchener in the Watkins novel will give the red-headed screen villain, Charles Bickford, the slickest part of his life. Bickford is now on the high seas headed for home and Hollywood and "The Front Door Step" will be his first picture after he returns from "furrin" parts.

Every time George Brent says "no, no" to a Warner Brothers' offer, Lyle Talbot says "yes, yes." It seems as if Mr. Talbot is just naturally slated to follow Mr. Brent. He did it in "Mandalay" and he will do it again in "Heat Lightning." Mervyn LeRoy, director, is losing no time in lining up his cast for this picture. He now has Ann Dvorak, Aline MacMahon, and Allen Jenkins and he will get the rest within a few days on account of he wants to be in New York Jan. 3 for his wedding.

Such hard berled sports writers as Damon Runyon and Mark Kelly may criticise the fighting technique of "The Prize Fighter and the Lady" but they agree with the New York critic who dubbed MAX Baer the male Mae West. Maybe you don't think Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer know they have a great find in the ex-Livermore butcher boy. Max is wasted for two more MGM pictures and he can write his own ticket. He has been offered a weekly salary almost on a par with that now received by Greta Garbo. Sufficient to say it's in the four figures and much, much more than two or three thousand per week.

Chatter in Hollywood

The last echo of the Countess Di Frasso-Gary Cooper romance happened when the Afghanistan dog which Dorothy gave Cooper, and which later he returned to her, ate a pet canary. The countess is now looking for another canary to take the place of her father's pet, which the dog ate in one gulp.

After two months in Naples and Genoa and Venice, Caroline will return to boss her daughter's screen career and to see that she eats the proper food. Elissa begins work at Columbia in a month.

What a lot of name changing is going on in Hollywood. Harriet Lake will become Ann Rothern. When I politely asked why I was told because Edward Rothern was such a grand actor, it doesn't make sense to me; maybe it does to you. Now Buster Crabbe has gone and changed his name to Larry Buster Crabbe because he wants to be known as an actor rather than an Olympian star. He is to be known as Larry Buster Crabbe and, when the Larry gets firmly planted in the mind of the public, he will drop the Buster. He is about, I am told, to draw a lead in Gene Fowler's "Shoe the Wild Mare."

Among those who wished the LOEWS bon voyage were NORMA SHEARER and IRVING THALBERG, JOSEPH SCHENCK, LOUIS B. MAYER and DARRYL ZANUCK, the EDGAR BERGENS, the HARRY RAPFS and others, DICK BERLIN taken on a personally conducted tour of Hollywood by HOWARD STRICKLING. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

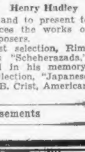
Pair of Favorites -:- Coming to the Shubert

Irene Purcell and Conrad Nagel, who come to the Shubert stage Monday in Lynn Starling's new comedy, "The First Apple." Both

Miss Purcell and Mr. Nagel have thousands of friends among local theater patrons. They are supported by a talented cast.

Hadley Opus Is on Program

At the third concert of the People's' Symphony Orchestra in Jordan Hall, next Sunday, Fabien Sevitzky will direct one of the most important programs offered by the local musical organization. Sevitzky's selection of music for this Sunday's program was carefully chosen with these factors in mind: to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the death of Rimsky-Korsakov, and to present to Boston audiences the works of American composers.



Henry Hadley

Sevitzky's first selection, Rimsky-Korsokov's "Scheherazada," will be played in his memory. The second selection, "Japanese Nocturne," by B. Crist, American composer.

Mae West Stays

The Mae West film, "I'm No Angel," begins its second week at the Paramount and Fenway, the hold-over resulting from the vast appeal this actress has on the movie public.

Scheduled to follow next Thursday are two first run photoplays, "College Coach" and "White Woman," the latter starring Charles Laughton and Carole Lombard.

Muni Stars in Modern Film

Aline MacMahon is prominent in his support, Mary Astor, Donald Cook, Patricia Ellis, Jean Muir, Margaret Lindsay, Guy Kibbee, Theodore Newton and Gordon Westcott are other players.

The co-feature will be "East of Fifth Avenue," adapted from the play, "Brownstone Front."

Trophy Is Set for Victor

A five weeks' duplicate bridge tournament will begin next Tuesday at RKO Keith's under the direction of James M. Magner, Jr., New England bridge authority associated with the theater during the showing of the Culbertson bridge series on screen. The tournament will end Tuesday, Dec. 18. A trophy will be presented to the team having the highest total match points for the five sessions of play. There will also be prizes for the top scores for each weekly session.

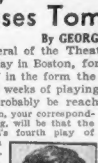
Guild Directors Come to See 'Mary of Scotland'; 'Follies' Closes Tomorrow Night

By GEORGE HOLLAND

With several of the Theater Guild's directorate expected to arrive today in Boston, for the purpose of viewing "Mary of Scotland," in the form the Helen Hayes play has assumed after several weeks of playing and revision, an important decision will probably be reached here.

That decision, your correspondent is believing, will be that the Theater Guild's fourth play of this season shall be Eugene O'Neil's newest, entitled "Days Without End." The famous playwright is represented currently at the Guild Theater in New York by "Ah! Wilderness," George M. Cohan's acting masterpiece.



Eugene O'Neil

The new O'Neil play tells the story of a business which becomes affected by a sudden religious fervor overcoming its captain. It is of normal length, that is to say it does not run five hours or three days as did respectively "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra."

We have no news at hand concerning a probable selection of actors for "Days Without End." But there is considerable news in what is subscribed already. The news is livened by the precedent it probably represents. Never has the Theater Guild produced two O'Neil plays in one season. The prolific, but leisurely O'Neil, has seldom had two plays ready within the short space of time that "Ah! Wilderness," was presented, and the time when shortly "Days Without End" will be placed in rehearsal.

A Revue Hit

The Girl in the Store Window, an altogether enchanting miss with a pretty cute number with Georges Metaxa in the "Follies" called "I Like the Likes of You" turned out last night to be somebody entirely different than the girl I credited in my mind, and myself in my review of the show, with the success of that five-minute turn.

I caught the number at the Shubert in a second visit to the big revue and this time the program had every authority that it had on opening night, when it was all askew. The Girl in the Store-Window is Miss Judith Barron, a slim, attractive blonde. I thought originally that she was Miss Jane Frohman, a slim, attractive brunette. When the television business gets someplace, errors like this will be precluded, because then when stars of the air make debuts on the stage, hardy listeners will have becomehardy see-ers, and we will recognize the artists in their new element. In this belated recognition of Miss Barron, it seems suitable to mention she is really very nice and can really dance as well as sing.

* * *

Future Star

I had the pleasure at Mr. Joe Cook's Hollis St. Theater, darkened temporarily for the public, but being used by Bobby Connolly as one of several stages to rehearse his "Follies" to see of late evening a miss named Ruth Reiter going through a dervishlike routine in practice clothes. Here is a dancing star of the future worth tabbing. Unhappily for Miss Reiter she is not as fortunate as vivacious Vilma Ebsen, the stunning young danseuse of the Ziegfeld show, in having a brother like Buddy. Vilma would be a big hit solo on anybody's stage, but with her tall young brother she becomes one-half of a perfect dancing duet. Miss Reiter should find a good partner.

They were debating until early today about the chances of keeping the "Follies" here another week. The switching of time would involve three shows, and the "Follies" will close tomorrow night. Or so they have decided . . . Irene Purcell will be welcomed to Boston Monday night in "The First Apple" at the Shubert by scores of friends who met her last season when she played the lead at the Hollis in "Good Woman, Poor Thing!"

In 'Follies'

Miss Betty Worth, who plays small roles in the "Follies" and is being slated for bigger things by her producers.

It will be a pleasure to meet her, as her friends are rabid about her charms . . . Courtney Burr, generous and lavish producer of the Plymouth's incoming show, "All Good Americans," whose first act on being told his play, "Sailor, Beware," was the first New York smash of this season, was to raise all salaries, including his press-agents, has reserged space at the Ritz-Carlton, beginning Monday . . . The hotel's affable Vitter, who cares for the theatrical young assistant manager, Mr. cal guests, smilingly set aside a wing, not a suite, for Mr. Burr.

Talent Takes to 'Weather'

On the stage of the RKO Keith Boston today is presented the widely known Cotton Club floor show, known as the Stormy Weather Revue. In its cast of 60, among other stars, are Adelaide Hall, former star of "Blackbirds"; George Dewey Washington, great singer; Josie Oliver doing the "snakeship"; Mills Blue Rhythm Band of radio, and stage renown; Three Little Words, steppers; the Cecil Mack Jubilee singers, and the Cotton Club Chorus, in addition to Alma Smith, Roy Atkins, Horace Stewart, the Four Flash Devils and Cora La Rodd.

On the screen is "Chance at Heaven," with Joel McCrea and Ginger Rogers.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Copyright, 1933, for the Boston Evening American.

Sally Rand complains that too many girls would like to steal her act.

Sally, by the way, will be starred in a motion picture if she manages to keep from serving that Chicago jail sentence.

Oh, well . . . she'll probably (all together, now!) wiggle out of it.

ANTI-CLIMAX

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Barton County Sunday schools are going to have a real treat in the nature of a free program and fun meeting. This promises to be a very worth while meeting of singing by everyone for thirty minutes, good special numbers, stunts and a jolly time.

Recognition will be given the following:

1. The rural Sunday school having the largest number present.
2. The town Sunday school having the most present.
3. The superintendent having served the longest period of time.
4. The greatest number that came in one Ford (other cars not barred).

This is a Good Time meeting. Every one come and laugh with us Saturday night. Then on Sunday, at 2:00 o'clock we have our Annual Efficiency conference.

Dear A. Bello—

Ans.—Oke. We both have a lot of common friends, I am sure.

MEN WHO MATTER.

With people all over the country apparently worried sick over how other people are going to use their new-found leisure, it behooves us all to pause a moment in silent tribute to Herman G. Umpdike. This two-fisted business Titan has made it possible for his underlings not only to have more leisure, but to enjoy their leisure more! H. G. merely ordered that all water coolers in his establishments be placed at one end of a long hall and all pencil sharpeners at the other end.

SUCCESS NO. 3235

For years and years and years Professor J. Dreary Doaksie was just a fussy old archaeologist, poking around the ruins of ancient civilization—turning over a fossil here and picking up a fossil there. His purse and his stomach were empty but his head was full of musty, dusty data. Dina and data. You should see Professor Doaksie now! Spats, stick, feather in the hat, and keys on a chain. He's in the money. Half a dozen sponsors have hired him to listen in on radio comics and report any uncalled for attempts to unload a gag that does not date back to the ice age.

One Difference Between Old Whiskey Saloon and New Whiskey Tavern

THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS might well take a leaf from the book of the State of New York in the plans to regulate liquor and promote temperance.

New York has barred the open saloon.

New York has banned the open bar.

Liquor or wines, for consumption on the premises there, will be served at tables and only in bona-fide hotels, restaurants, clubs, vessels and railroad cars.

The only restaurants which will be permitted to serve liquors are those which can prove that most of their receipts come from the sale of foods.

Liquor for consumption not on the premises will be sold at stores or stations licensed by the State.

NO DECEPTION THERE.

* * *

IF New York can do it, we can do it.

New York State has four times our population.

New York City has ten times the population of Boston, and all our problems ten-fold.

If Gay New York City, with its Broadway, its floating population, its horde of tourists and its spectacular background, can make a genuine and sincere effort to regulate liquor in the interest of temperance, we can try it and we can achieve it.

If New York can be faithful to its promise not to restore the old and disreputable saloon—a promise made unceasingly by backers of repeal during the fourteen years of prohibition—we at least should be as sincere in redeeming that promise so repeatedly made.

* * *

THE proposed new "tavern" is the old saloon, under a different name. There is only one difference. The saloon was a place where you stood up to get drunk; the tavern is a place where you would sit down to get drunk. The unfortunate, degrading result would be the same.

Platforms of both major parties specifically pledged that the return of the saloon would not be tolerated.

If we are to have the tavern at all, let it be a place where only beer and light wines are to be sold and from which hard liquors are to be barred.

True temperance will be fostered thereby, while still making all sorts of liquors easily available to rich man and working man alike.

U. S. Intervention Must Save Schools

With Armistice Day the American people concluded their thirteenth annual observance of American Education Week.

This year's observance has laid bare the crisis that now exists in public education North, East, South and West.

Speaking for the Roosevelt Administration, George F. Zook, United States Commissioner of Edncation, makes public the following official findings regarding the present plight of the country's educational system:

FIRST—More than 2,280,000 children in this country today who, under most compulsory education laws, should be in school are not getting schooling.

SECOND—Nearly 2,000 rural schools in 24 States have not yet opened their doors for the Autumn term.

THIRD—One out of every four cities has been compelled to shorten the school term and 715 rural schools that opened in September will have to close before Christmas.

FOURTH—Sixteen institutions of higher education in different parts of the country have been discontinued since last year.

FIFTH—Two hundred and fifty-nine school districts in 29 States have defaulted on their indebtedness and a total of $40,-000,000 in warrants issued by school districts to pay teachers remain unpaid.

SIXTH—One of every four American teachers now employed is being paid at the rate of less than $750 a year, although the unskilled factory worker, under the minimum blanket code rate of the NRA, gets $728.

This appalling revelation of what has happened to public education in this country presents a problem that can be solved only by Federal leadership strongly supported by all the States of the Union.

Under the American system of government the control of education is a sovereign function of the State.

But the promotion of education is as much the bounden duty of the Federal Government as it is of the several States.

Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln are among the great Presidents who have recognized and emphasized the fostering of education as a Federal responsibility.

Their teachings were applied by Calvin Coolidge when, as President, he urged upon Congress the establishment in the Federal city of a Department of Education.

The crisis in American education, to which the national observance of American Education Week has directed attention, offers the Roosevelt Administration one of its greatest opportunities.

This is the opportunity to place education upon an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor in the Cabinet of the President and thus establish "a Federal headquarters for education that shall be competent to meet the increasing national responsibility for education."

An Ocean Air Terminal

Boston would be one of the three American terminals for a regular trans-Atlantic airplane service proposed to the government authorities at Washington.

The service proposes that five "islands" or floating docks be constructed in the Atlantic on which the airplanes would alight when necessary. Each dock would displace 63,000 tons, half again as big as the airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga, on which planes now make their takeoffs and landings with regularity. The nearest American island would be 425 miles, a matter of four hours, from Boston.

The Graf Zeppelin flies easily from Germany across the Atlantic to South America and thence north to Chicago and back home again, and we think nothing of it. We hear only about the accidents. Yet statistics tell us that airplane transportation has no more fatalities than railroad transportation.

Just Folks

I Laugh at Gold

I laugh at gold! It cannot buy
A line of Shakespeare ready-made to quote,
A man must on the page set mind and eye
Before one phrase can issue from his throat.

I laugh at gold! It cannot tell
Its proud possessor why the sun's eclipse,
Nor teach him how to write his letters well,
Nor check the faulty sentence on his lips.

I laugh at gold! It cannot hire
Wisdom to serve when problems grave arise.
Fools may be rich, but still their need is dire
When comes the great occasion to be wise.

"Give Me My Share!"

Before Prohibition, corrupt local politics was allied with the saloon—and that alliance was one of the evils that brought on Prohibition.

Under the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, the saloon was banished, but the speakeasy arose in its place—and the lawless speakeasy was commonly allied with politics. And that alliance of the speakeasy and politics fostered racketeering and protected crime and criminals.

We have ridded ourselves of Prohibition to get rid of speakeasies and crime and racketeering.

But the saloon must not return—and politics MUST NOT INTERFERE AGAIN in the regulation of the liquor business. The public will not tolerate it.

Let every politician keep that thought constantly in mind.

Capital Parks Must Stay Under Federal Control

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Close to the heart of the American people is the conservation under federal control of all that makes the federal city the most beautiful national capital in the world.

Its public buildings and grounds and parks are a national asset. The people of every state take a vital interest in their governance and development, because Washington belongs not to a local group, but to the entire American people in their corporate capacity as a nation.

George Washington intended the federal city should "express the soul of America" and provide a model home for all the federal government.

The suggestion of a newly appointed commissioner of the District of Columbia that all the parks of the federal city be taken away from the federal government and turned over to the complete control of the local political authorities rightly merits the national rebuke it will doubtless get.

THE PARK SYSTEM

The stupidity of this proposal is made convincingly clear in the prompt announcement by the Secretary of the Interior that the Roosevelt administration will oppose such a transfer.

Speaking for the administration, the director of national parks, buildings and reservations, A. B. Cammerer, says:

"The public parks of Washington provide the setting for most of the government buildings.

"They are essentially an ornament in the national capital rather than local recreational areas.

"Federal funds were used in the purchase and improvement of a large portion of the park areas, and taxes paid by citizens from all parts of the nation contribute to their maintenance.

"Every American citizen, whether he be a resident of the District of Columbia or of a far removed part of the country, has an interest in the welfare of the parks of the national capitol, because he takes pride in their beauty and in the excellence of the capital's architectural achievements."

The park system of the federal city, as Director Cammerer points out, was an important phase of the plans of the original city of Washington in accordance with the act of July 16, 1790. In addition to the donated street areas, President Washington purchased 17 reservations, which included the capitol grounds and the White House grounds or President's park.

THE WATCHWORD

Many other park areas have been acquired since through reclamation, at federal expense and through donation.

When President Roosevelt recently transferred the administration of the parks of the federal city from the War Department where for years they had been admirably ordered, to the Department of the Interior, he was careful to specify that they should be retained under absolute federal control.

He authorized the transfer only that he might make them a part of the world's greatest park organization, which is a federal agency, administered for the benefit of all the people of the United States.

The fatuous proposal of the new political appointee to the district government that the parks should be added to the political pie counter of the local authorities is what Mr. Cammerer says it is "a step backward in both economy and functioning."

At a time when the Roosevelt administration is striving to encourage national planning all over the United States, it is unfortunate that one of the President's appointees to federal office should show himself as much out of sympathy with the spirit that quickens "the new deal" as the district commissioner who sponsors this silly scheme appears to be.

It only goes to show that when it comes to protecting what belongs to all the American people "eternal vigilance" must ever be the watchword.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—I like that sign over Hamburg Mary's: "Our hamburgers are made; not accumulated." Katherine Brush seems the plush-iest of the literati. With the finest studio workroom in town, she often tires of it and rents a de luxe hotel suite to turn out a chapter or so.

Aubrey Eads, a Houston, Texas, boy, who made good in the city. Billy Gaxton is the actor who can clown effeminacy and still seem masculine. Ona Munson is always changing her looks. Now she is thin with bangs. I'm fed up with those Victorian novels with long descriptive passages. Give me Fannie Hurst's staccato!

One of my favorite people—Frank Crowninshield. Jim Flagg attracts more attention than beauties in squires to lunch.. The Mayfair dances are having biggest crowds in their history. All the stars and many of the boys from Lindy's. "Camera Eye" Sheridan, the famous veteran detective.

One word description of Helen Hayes—shyish. Lily Pons and Mrs. Eugene O'Neil look alike. So do Al Thomas and Osgood Perkins. John Held, Jr., hasn't changed in 20 years. Maybe the influence of those collegiate pictures he draws. George Akerson, Hoover's secretary.

What became of Kip Rhinelander and the Ku Klux? Gangster types who hang around East Side undertaking parlors. Fifty years ago many thought themselves as important as many today. But where are they? What a farce it all is. Still even comes the revolution, I enjoy sticking around.

I walked the other evening with Hi Manning, a 20-year-old youth, whose last 10 years have been spent in private schools abroad. From an impudent jerkin he had become a thorough cosmopolite with great charm and culture. He speaks four languages fluently and has an astonishing grasp of art and literature for one so young. Never before had he seen the Bowery, Chinatown or the Ghetto. What impressed was his utter freedom from affection, and although he had caught America on the down-swing he observed: "I've had all I want of Europe. Everything makes me glad I was born here."

New York is to be visited shortly by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, who are coming from Pasadena to see their book publishers. They rank with Charles and Kathleen Norris and the late C. N. and Alice Williamson among literature's happily married. They plot together in a rose-bowered cottage, attend Hollywood late parties, raise dachshunds and are suckers for period furniture.

Among most mispronounced writing names, by the way, is that of John Cowper Powys. It is generally pronounced with a double ow. Whereas Cowper is as though spelled Cooper and the Po in Powys is like the Poe in Edgar Allan Poe.

The same enlightener in his obiter dicta about Powys tacks on a jingle I've heard before:
Took my girl for a spin
We sang a little dirty
Suddenly I produced the gin
And we were sippin pretty.

The step-daughter of Kenneth C. Beaton, the sprightly K. C. B. of the newspaper columns, is the outstanding comedienne of the stage in many seasons. In Variety parlance she "wows 'ems." She made her first professional appearance in the Billie Burke version of the Follies. Tall, slim, golden-haired, she is somewhat reminiful of Charlotte Greenwood. But her droll absurdities strike an absolutely new note in nonsensical hilarities. She is 17 and likely the unstagiest lady the theater has seen in a generation.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Still Clinging Vines?

HERE'S A kid letter. Just a Girl Friend talking about her Boy Friend. Should—or shouldn't—he "see her home after they've been stepping out?"

A silly question? That depends on how you look at it. Time was when All Nice People would have gasped with horror at the very notion of such a query. Let A Nice Young Girl go Home Alone? Unthinkable! And the young man who attempted it, or the girl who permitted it, would have promptly received the Official Dog Eye.

But now that women have become People and ceased (or have they?) being Clinging Vines, have, or haven't, such little courtesies gone into the ash can?

Elsie Robinson

Plainly, Dolly's Boy Friends think they have? Send Dolly home alone? "Why not?" say they, in a carefree chorus! So here comes Dolly, wanting to know—HAS SHE BEEN INSULTED, OR HASN'T SHE?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I've got a problem I'd like you to give me an opinion about. Maybe it sounds strange, but it means a lot to the girls I know. So here it is.

AREN'T BOYS SUPPOSED TO TAKE A GIRL HOME IF THEY TAKE HER OUT, NOWADAYS?

I live a little far out, and when I go out with boys they don't seem to think it's necessary for them to see that I get home safely. They just put me on a street car, and that's that! I don't like it. I'm not exactly afraid to go home on the car alone. It stops about a half block from my door but—well, it makes me feel queer to have the boys act like that.

There is one boy in particular that I like a lot. He does the same thing. We got into an argument over it, and he says that THESE MODERN "INDEPENDENT" GIRLS DON'T HAVE TO PRETEND TO BE AFRAID, OR NEED "A MAN'S STRONG ARM" TO PROTECT THEM.

Then he went on to say that it's just a sort of racket for girls to demand all this freedom and then, when it suits them, to pretend to be so helpless.

I don't believe that, and I got pretty mad when he said it. I admit that my boy friends would get home pretty late if they took me home, and it would be hard for them to get down to the office on time next day. But I think it a boy respects a girl, he ought to do it. Or am I wrong?

Dolly.

A kid problem? No—much more than that! Here's a query that touches the whole world of modern men and women, with their new rights and their new relationships.

If you're an older man or woman, brought up in "the days of chivalry," you'll see only one answer to that question: "ANY MAN WHO CALLS HIMSELF A GENTLEMAN WILL CERTAINLY ESCORT A GIRL HOME. THE WAY THEY DID WHEN WE WERE BOYS AND GIRLS."

But is the rest of the world being run as it was when "we were boys and girls?" Are women, in other departments of their lives, willing to live as Mother and Grandma lived?

When Mother and Grandma were Sweet Young Things, girls didn't go off unchaperoned to public dances or "blind date" parties 50 miles away—didn't pay their own way, and probably their escorts' into those parties—didn't stay up until three and four.

IF THERE WERE DEFINITE DEMANDS MADE THEN ON YOUNG MEN, THERE WERE ALSO DEFINITE LIMITS SET ON YOUNG WOMEN.

BUT THE MODERN YOUNG WOMAN WANTS TO HAVE HER CAKE AND EAT IT, TOO.

Spies Are Busiest Units in Europe—Germany's Greatest Woman Agent Is Now Asylum Inmate

By Edwin C. Hill

In almost every country of the continent, and even in placid England, the spy fever burns hotly, and the secret police are combing the frontiers and the hiding places of great cities for the military agents who are trying to unearth the secrets of new defenses and new plans for attack. It is the busiest industry in Europe.

It is one of the oldest industries in the world, precisely as its evil brother, war, is one of the most ancient.

GREATEST SPY STORY

The greatest spy story the war produced was the story of the beautiful young German woman, Anne Marie Lesser, the most successful of all the spies that Germany employed. The story of Anne Marie Lesser is told in a book of true spy stories called "Espionage," and published by Appleton.

In the spring of 1914 Anne Marie Lesser set forth on one of her eternal travels, this time to Belgium. She was sent to get facts about the fortifications of Belgium.

One evening in Brussels a party of Belgian officers were having a gay party. Anne Marie Lesser, blonde, blue-eyed, very lovely and intriguing, was sitting in the same restaurant. A young Belgian lieutenant, Rene Austin, was passing her table when a glass fell to the floor.

Lieut. Rene Austin, a chivalrous gentleman, hastened to her side, escorted her out of the room and helped her bind the cut with cotton and adhesive tape.

TOURED THE COUNTRY

One day, Anne Marie Lesser, ensimulate art student, purchased a little car and asked Rene Austin to tour the country with her to visit the museums.

And then one day, as their little car was skirting the Dutch border, a piece of paper whisked from a book Anne Marie was carrying and went dancing before the wind. Rene Austin sprang from the car to recover it. "No, no," cried Anne Marie. "It is of no consequence. Let it go!" But the lieutenant, out of sheer gallantry, ran after it, to restore to the girl he loved anything that was hers, however trivial.

The paper was whisked through a hedge, which the lieutenant vaulted swiftly. When he reappeared from behind the hedge there was no paper in his hand. His face was strange. Anne Marie watched him with her hand on her heart. He said, merely: "The paper fell into a little pool and is lost."

Without another word they returned to the car, got in and drove away. She saw that her sweetheart's face was white and set like stone. She sat tense as a cat, ready to leap or to fight to the death. The lieutenant gave her the chance for neither. He drove at breakneck speed for the nearest village. When he reached it he jammed on the brakes, leaped from the car and hurried to a nearby policeman.

ESCAPED IN CRASH

Instantly Anne Marie drove her pretty foot against the accelerator and the car went shrieking through the village and out to the edge of the forest, where it crashed against a tree, overturned and caught fire. Thrown clear, Anne Marie ran along a narrow path which led to a canal.

She stripped off her clothes, tied them in a bundle, attached the bundle to her back and swam straight for the canal bont. An old man on the canal boat was so amazed at seeing her with so little on that he dropped his pipe in astonishment. "Three thousand francs," cried Anne Marie, "if you take me across the frontier in your boat. Quick, I'm smuggling diamonds and the police are after me."

The old gentleman, August the fourth, the Germans launched their assault against the fortress of Liege, and due to Anne Marie's information, were able to smash its defense and capture it.

After the Armistice was signed, Anne Marie Lesser went to live in a little house in Zehlendorf, surrounded by a garden. Morphine and cocaine, which had kept her going through her desperate years of peril had destroyed her nerves. One day, accompanied by nurses, she departed for Switzerland where the doors of an asylum closed upon her.

She still lives there today in that asylum for the insane.
